Buy Wisely, and Rejoice Rabbits Fighting Eagles Minus $500,000,000 Crime, Not Beer, the Issue

By Arthur Brisbane

E. D. FRANZ, a St. Louis grocer, died in 1898, leaving an estate consisting of Burroughs Adding Machine stock, in which he had invested $21,000. Now his estate will be divided among his nine heirs, and as the result of that $21,000 investment, they will have $10,831,000.

Some investments in this country are excellent. And there are some on the "list" now that will be as good in time as the Burroughs adding machine ever was. The difficulty is to identify them.

It is well to remember and occasionally to repeat the lesson that the British are teaching the world as regards the value of air fighting, in their war against the Afridis.

At all cost Britain must defend Peshawar, commanding the Khyber Pass, that separates the mild Hindus and the great British possessions of India from the savage tribes of Afghans and others.

In the old days a great army of white men, and many white deaths, would have been called for by the present Afridi attacks. Now Britain sends a few airplanes to drop bombs on fortresses, troops and private houses and the Afridis vanish—rabbits can't fight eagles.

Railroads say they will make this year $500,000,000 less in net profits than the 5½ per cent on their valuation that the government wants them to make.

The falling off in coal traffic is partly responsible.

Coal is old fashioned. Oil, natural gas, and hydro-electric power have pushed it into the background. Coal may come back by the development of its by-products, in transforming bituminous into anthracite coal in a process employed by the company of Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., in Chicago.

And coal values may be re-established by transforming coal into electric power at the mines. But that won't help railroads. They will have to be helped by thinking about their problems instead of watching and waiting for something to cut into them, as automobiles, automobile trucks, motor buses, and other things have done.

The railroads, very powerful, conscious of their powers, have stood like the sturdy African rhinoceros, waiting for the English sportsmen to come and shoot him.

"Wets," speaking through President Curran of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, claim a gain of 29 votes in the House of Representatives. The drys probably will say, "Not so."

It is no longer a question of wet or dry, beer or water, but a much more important question of CRIME.

There is no doubt that prohibition finances bootlegging, and that bootlegging finances our gigantic crime wave, to the tune of hundreds of millions a year.

The publication of a murdered bootlegger's account books in Chicago reveals that he had on his payroll judges, other officials, policemen and "reformers." That cannot be ignored.

Capt. Arthur H. Page, of the Marine Corps, flying a Curtiss plane with an 800 horsepower engine, made a trial flight at 250 miles an hour. He expects to equal 300 miles an hour, in the Thompson trophy race September 1 in Chicago.

Everybody interested in airplanes should go to Chicago for the great air meet which starts on Saturday and will gather at least 2000 planes, from all over the world.

Russia does not want silver hoarded or anything done to interfere with credit, or to monopolize money. Four men convicted of hoarding coin were shot dead, which is the Soviet method of showing that it is displeased.

If they ever have a federal reserve in Russia you may be sure that it won't push the interest rate on call money up to 20 per cent.

In Florida three men are released under bail accused of a plot to hire somebody to kill Doyle E. Carlton, governor of the state.

The modern gang idea of hiring somebody else to do your killing is spreading. Chinese of New York have adopted it in their tong wars.

When the tong gentlemen became impatient and resumed shooting of their own accord, Mr. Mulrooney, the new and efficient police commissioner, and Dist. Atty. Crain yesterday notified the Chinese that they would give them one week in which to stop shooting each other or they would all be deported.

It might be a good idea to

Democrats in War for Bacon Senate Seat

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

At the call of Chairman Frank J. Donahue of the Democratic State committee, the ward committees of the Sixth Senatorial District meet late this afternoon to nominate a candidate to oppose Senator G. Bacon, president of the Massachusetts Senate.

Bacon, Republican, was left a clear field when his two Democratic opponents, James W. Hayes and William H. Powderly, withdrew from the primary contest last Friday.

The call for the ward committee meeting, embracing Wards 12, 19 and 21, was closely guarded by Donahue, who desires the strongest candidate. It is known he favors Michael H. Corcoran of West Roxbury, a business man and former chairman of the Boston school committee.

LAW PROVIDES NOMINATION

The meeting is to be held in Myers hall, Tremont Temple. The nomination to be effective must be filed today with the Secretary of State.

Chairman Donahue is acting under chapter 53, section 49 of the general laws, which states:

"If a person nominated to be voted for at a State primary dies before the day of the primary, or withdraws his name from nomination, or is found ineligible, and there is no other candidate for the party nomination for the office, the vacancy may be filled by the State committee, if the candidate is one to be voted for by all the voters of the Commonwealth; and in the case of candidates for nomination or election in a district, by the members of the ward or town committees in the wards and towns comprising the district."

BOSTON PO LICE HUNT GARRETT IN PORTLAND

Mysterious Mrs. Redden in the Probe of Handcuff Slaying Interests Detectives

Sergt. Inspector George Augusta and Special Officer William Crowley, seeking Oliver B. Garrett, missing former liquor raider, joined Portland (Me.) police today in the investigation of the "handcuff murder" of Patrolman Michael T. Connolly.

The two Boston officers, who were on Garrett's trail in Maine for two weeks, returned to Portland today and this afternoon were in conference with city, county and federal authorities, who believe the group of rum racketeers suspected as Connolly's murders keeps Garrett's whereabouts a secret.

Present at the "conference" with the Boston inspectors were Chief Haskell of Portland, City Manager James E. Barlow, State's Attorney Ralph M. Ingalls and federal officers.

A taxi driver who told a friend yesterday: "You would be surprised if you knew who killed Connolly," was being grilled.

A search was being made for a blonde woman known as "Mrs. Redden," maiden name of Garrett's wife. This woman is said to be a member of the Maine rum racketeers suspected to have slain the Portland officer when he attempted to prevent them landing a cargo of liquor last Friday morning.

Also being sought were other members of the rum ring, composed of former Boston and New York racketeers who are believed to have knowledge of Garrett's whereabouts.

Visits to all garages on Patrolman Connolly's beat were also being made, and the registration numbers of all cars stored in them between Thursday and Saturday were to be checked at the motor vehicle registry.

Two police boats dragged the harbor near the spot where Connolly was hurled or made to walk at gunpoint to his death, his wrists locked in his own handcuffs. They were seeking the slain patrolman's hat which has never been recovered.

Meanwhile, the report of Dr. William Holt, who conducted the autopsy on the body, was made to State's Atty. Ingalls. It verified a previous announcement that the cause of death was drowning.

Inspector Harold Tomas, who found Connolly's notebook, from which entries on the morning of the slaying had been erased, was being questioned today regarding it.

Jane Poor Flies Solo After 10-Hour Lesson

After only 10 hours' instruction, Miss Jane Poor, 34, of Virginia rd., Lincoln, wealthy owner of the Hartwell Farms in that town, made a solo flight today at the Boston airport. The instruction period is remarkably short for a woman flier. Her teacher was William Tanner of the Curtiss-Wright Company. After circling the airport several times, Miss Poor made a perfect three-point landing.

FERRELL WINS 21ST AS SOX LOSE, 7-2

Failure to Hit in Pinches Costs Boston Team Chance for Victory

Fenway Park, Aug. 19—Wes Ferrell, star hurler of the Cleveland Indians, chalked up his 21st victory of the season when he beat the Red Sox 7 to 2 in the first game of a double-header today.

The Red Sox hit safely 10 times but failed to bunch their blows when hits meant runs. Milton Gaston, star hurler of the Red Sox, started on the mound but was taken out for pinch hitter Scarrett in the seventh inning.

Gaston pitched fine ball during his stay on the mound but his teammates were unable to do much with the offerings of Ferrell. Bushy finished for the Red Sox.

The Cleveland hurler, in addition to pitching superb ball, contributed three of this teammates' 11 hits. The Red Sox threatened in the ninth inning, but their rally went for naught when Ferrell tightened up.

Prelate Praises Puritans and Warns Delegates of the Evils From Riches

Full text of Cardinal's address on pages 2 and 5. Pictures on page 13.

Righteousness cannot be forced on a people by statutes or machine guns, Cardinal O'Connell told Knights of Columbus convention delegates gathered at mass in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross today.

A few hours before the Cardinal made his address, congratulations were received by the Knights of Columbus from Pope Pius XI, expressing the well wishes of the Catholic Church head.

The Pope's message was contained in a cablegram from Cardinal Pacelli, which read:

"The Holy Father is particularly pleased to receive the filial homage of the Knights of Columbus, and while wishing them well in their work sends them his apostolic benediction."

Supreme officers and directors of the Knights were escorted to the Cathedral from the Hotel Statler by fourth degree officers and the mass was celebrated at 10 a. m.

Nearly 5000 delegates and women were in the line of march behind the Alhambra Band from the hotel to the Cathedral.

The Rev. Joseph F. Coppinger, L. P. P., rector of St. Augustine's Church, South Boston, state chaplain of the Knights of Columbus, celebrated the mass. The Cardinal sat in the sanctuary.

Cardinal O'Connell, in his address to the delegates to the 48th supreme convention, sketched the growth of the country from Puritan days.

WHAT PURITANS FACED.

He praised the Puritans who came 300 years ago, and he criticised the majority of historians for stressing principally the coldest, most austere side of the men and women of that day.

"It is inconceivable," the Cardinal said, "that the Massachusetts of today, 300 years after its settlement, could be identical in any sense with the Massachusetts of 1630, and it is well that it is not.

"A thousand influences, unsuspected and undreamed of by the Puritans of 1630, have evolved our present position, social, economical and religious.

"Puritanism was an extreme—the law of fanaticism. We wish we could say that there was nothing of this unsocial, uncongenial spirit left in America. But, alas, from time to time we are made only too conscious of it by the enactment of laws and statutes which still indicate the spirit of the Old Testament and not that of the New.

SOUNDS WARNING, TOO

"History proves that goodness and virtue and righteousness cannot be forced on a people by statutes or machine guns.

"But while we shudder at the fierce austerity of Puritan life, we would do well not to forget that luxury and wealth may lead to the corruption even of the best, and destroy the very foundation of this nation, founded by sturdy men in poverty and privation."

The mass was followed by a reception and formal opening of the convention in the Imperial Ballroom of the Statler.

OVATION FOR CURLEY

Supreme Director Swift opened the meeting of the convention and presented State Deputy Joseph M. Kirby as presiding officer.

In behalf of Cardinal O'Connell, greetings to the delegates were then conveyed by Rt. Rev. Mgr. Richard J. Haberlin, D. D. V. G., who praised the Knights for their work in spreading education among the youth of the country.

Mayor Curley then was introduced as a member of Shawmut Council No. 176, and was accorded an ovation that lasted nearly two minutes.

The Mayor's first move was to present to Supreme Knight James H. Carmody a walking stick made from an elm tree that grew for 200 years on Lexington Green, where the Minute Men made their stand. Curley described the stick as "a constitutional big stick."

PRAISES KNIGHTS' AID

In addressing the delegates he declared that the Knights of Columbus had been of great help to him in their support of every movement for "sanity, serenity and decency in Boston."

"Without the Knights of Columbus support," he said, "Boston would not have adopted what is now being adopted in every city in the country, following the Boston model—a moral code for performers, which is accepted now as a necessary thing for preservation of the public morals."

Mayor Curley urged the Knights to give thought to the unemployment situation. America, the richest country in the world, should have no poor, he declared.

After the reception, the delegates left in buses for Bunker Hill Monument, afterward being given luncheon by Bunker Hill Council. Then they continued their sightseeing trip to Lexington and Concord.

Later they were due at Boston Airport to inspect the airport and take short flights in a Curtiss-Wright-owned Ford tri-motor, piloted by Lieut. Ralph T. Wickford.

LARGE REGISTRATION

Former Mayor Cornelius D. Driscoll, William H. Sellwood and William M. Gately, all of New Haven, registered. They are members of New Haven Council No. 1, and the only three survivors of the original incorporators of the Knights of Columbus.

Also today, State Treasurer Thomas A. McGrath of the order, presented to each supreme officer an embossed bullfrog, and to Supreme Knight Carmody and Supreme Director John F. Swift, a gavel made of wood from the U. S. frigate Constitution.

Most of the delegates were in Boston to start the work of the convention today. Registration officials, under James Carroll, chairman, reported almost a complete registration.

A national program for better K. of C. Council publications was the movement launched by the third annual session of the Knights of Columbus Editors Association held at the Hotel Statler.

"Dick" Ryan, international president of the association, presided over the gathering. He is editor of St. Augustine Bulletin, Stamford, Ct.

A better method of promoting council activities through these publications was the feature of a talk by Ryan and it was resolved to petition the supreme directors for a sort of council box in the national publication.

EDITORS ARE DINED

The editors of more than 100 papers throughout the country, Canada, the Canal Zone, Porto Rico and Cuba dined. Fred J. Wiley, editor of The Anchor, Burlington, Ia., who is also the Grand Knight of Burlington and Iowa State delegation for the supreme convention, was toastmaster. He is vice-president of the association.

Says U.S. Women Copy Each Other in Style

Chicago, Aug. 19 (AP)—The difference between American and French women, says Louis Clement, is that the former try to copy each other while the latter try to be themselves.

And Clement, a New York and Paris cosmetician attending the convention of the American Association of Cosmeticians and Hair Artists, believes the French woman is right.

The Parisienne, Clement told reporters, seeks to be an individual; she achieves her chic by studying herself and wearing the clothes and makeup that accentuate her individuality. The American woman, on the other hand, wears them and a posey on her shoulder if that seems to be the style.

Too much plucking of the eyebrows and too much makeup are other observations Clement has made of the fair sex in America. He suggested face powders blended to the complexion of the individual with nearly all women using a darker powder than at present.

Westmoreland, N. H., Aug. 19—Victims of the sinking of a century-old ferry, the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Austin, their year-old baby, Marion Ruth, and William Clark, a farmhand, were recovered today.

Two divers, rushed here from Bellows Falls, Vt., brought to the surface the bodies of mother and daughter and later lifted from the river's depths those of the two men.

The baby's body was recovered at 1 a. m., the hour that marked the first anniversary of her birth.

The family was en route to Peterboro, N. H., for a visit and their car occupied the ferry with that of Harry A. Pierce of Keene.

Study Puritans' Life to Learn Loyalty to Church: Cardinal

Scoring wealthy Catholics who school their children at so-called fashionable schools to the detriment of their religious education, Cardinal O'Connell cited the ideals of the Puritan founders of New England in his welcome today at the convention mass of the Knights of Columbus.

His welcome to the delegates and members follows in full:

It is a great pleasure to welcome to Boston the supreme officers of the Knights of Columbus and all the members of that distinguished Catholic organization. I have no doubt that one of the reasons for the selection of Boston for your convention this year is the fact that we are celebrating here the 300th anniversary of the founding of the Bay State Colony of Massachusetts.

Every citizen of this great commonwealth feels a just and honest pride in the foundation, growth and progress of this community, which in its 300 years of history has achieved an amount for the welfare of its own people and indeed of all the people of the whole country.

The story of every great human institution which achieves lasting success is practically the same; solid foundation, not but mere growth, and finally a most flourishing development into a substantial and enduring fame.

STUDY HISTORY

The Knights of Columbus still in its infancy as an organization may profitably study the foundation, growth and development of every great institution, so that by imitation of what is best and avoidance of weaknesses which tend to disintegrate and decay, they may apply to their own organization those elements which tend toward endurance and ultimate success. For that reason your meeting here at this time may well be a source of interest, historical and social, because it is always an advantage to study history on the ground where the incidents and events took place, which have rendered the growth of an institution like the Bay State Colony eminently worthy of reflection and indeed, in some respects, of imitation.

No need to repeat here the history of the Puritan adventure around the shores of Massachusetts Bay.

That story has been told many times, sometimes with an exaggeration which, for the moment, is sometimes in an attitude unsympathetic, sometimes exalting merely accidental incidents of no real recognizable importance. This method of romancing about plain facts of history is not unknown even in our day and it ends in being no compliment to those whose actions it would exploit to achievement. We find it in the history of our own saints. Not infrequently the romance about the lives of these saintly heroes has only served to eclipse their solid virtues and be no useful service either to a great hero or a great saint to magnify mere trifles and belittle real difficulty or obstacles in the way. Many a well-meaning biographer, by merely romancing, misses the whole point of the strength of character and the moral grandeur which is the striking note of a great personality.

Now it is much the same with the story of these sturdy people who 300 years ago settled on these shores and builded far better than they knew. It is not enough to think about us in the twentieth century and see, in what we know now as Massachusetts, the outcome of what had its origin in quite different atmosphere and under completely different circumstances. To say that everything which Massachusetts now possesses is the result of conditions leading to the founding of the Bay Colony, is interesting romance, but it is certainly not history.

A thousand influences, unsuspected and undreamed of by the Puritans of 1630, have evolved our present position, social, economical and religious. The true history of our present day Massachusetts has yet to be written; but it is of enormous interest, nevertheless, to look back over 300 years and study some of the characteristics and traits which enabled the early Puritan to make a solid beginning of a great enterprise.

History is merely the record of the action and reaction of human events. Again and again as we traverse the ages we witness the eternal human tendency to swing from one extreme to another, with the ceaseless desire for an equipoise, which in merely human affairs seems rarely attainable.

The human race has forever inherited an inextinguishable desire for unity. This concept of the destiny of mankind was exemplified and taught by Christ Himself; and His Church is called Catholic precisely because the underlying principles of its life and action is unity in universality. The center of this unity from the very beginning of Christianity, was the primacy of Peter and his successors.

FLAYS PROPAGANDA

I am well aware that propaganda has attempted to inject a certain misconception into that idea but I am speaking now without regard to romance or propaganda, for one side or the other, but only as an observer of a historic fact that has persisted for two thousand years. So long as that center of unity was allowed to exercise its functions as a unifying influence every human individual knew that everyone else was his brother.

The whole story of Christianity proves that the one sacred influence which has striven throughout all Christian history to keep this innate desire for unity clear has been that eternal center of Christian unity on earth, Rome and Roman pontiffs.

In the sixteenth century excessive pride of nationalism almost wrecked the superb and divine concept. The supreme effort of the Tudor dynasty was to gather all power, spiritual and temporal, into its own hands. To attain that purpose Rome was banished from the Kingdom and with it the concept of Christian unity. The King became Pope. The Bishops were his favorites, battening on the rich Catholic benefices and the new nobility were parvenues, sycophants of the King, enriched by the spoils of the Church.

Following on the heels of this arrogant conception of power, spiritual and temporal, what was bound to happen did happen. In a word, the result of the downfall of Christian standards, the arrogance of the King the tyranny of the Bishops and the superciliousness of the nobles created the reaction which is now called Puritanism.

The result of all this was that instead of the old, easy-going Catholic landlord, the plain people of England now found in his place a despot who taxed them to death, the new bishops who spurned their plainness, and the nobility who snubbed and despised them. They saw in the Established Church spiritual oppression and indifference to real religion; and in their new lords and masters heartless profligates, given over entirely to the enjoyment of the wealth pilfered from the church. And so the break had to come.

The thought of Rome had been poisoned in their hearts by clever, subtle and widespread propaganda, of course they could give no thought of return to Rome; that Rome which during all the previous centuries had been their best safeguard against despotism and the constant defender of their civil rights as English citizens.

So they turned away not only from Rome, which they had been taught to hate, but even from their monarchs, who had become profligates; from the new bishops, who were merely the tools of the sovereign, and from the lords, who were the personification of pride and arrogance. Their sovereign despised them, the new bishops oppressed them and the new lords snubbed them. What could they do but make some attempt to get away from them all in the effort to save their souls and their civil rights.

So they turned their course westward, left England with its profligacy and snobbishness behind them and with high courage sought the wilderness of the shores of Massachusetts Bay.

And so the Massachusetts Bay Colony was founded by a body of men, who in the eyes of the King, Bishops and lords, were rebels against civil and ecclesiastical authority. The King had rebelled against Rome, now it was their turn to rebel against the spiritual authority of the Sovereign and later against civil authority. The process was only a logical one, for the fruit of rebellion is ever more rebellion.

SETTLERS STURDY MEN

Now these sturdy men, who called themselves Puritans, were the hardy descendants of pre-Tudor Catholics. All the good qualities they had they inherited from those Christian traits which had been taught from the time of Saint Augustine to the whole English nation. They were not the traits merely of Puritans. They were the traditional qualities of all Christians alike. Fortitude, long-suffering, honesty, endurance under difficulties, all these they had and they were high virtues, but it is a libel on Christianity to call them merely the virtues of the Puritans. They are the inherited traits of all those who love and practice the Christian tradition. And upon these virtues they built, whatever they constructed and because of these Christian virtues the best of that building has endured.

No one pretends that the Puritans were the embodiment of all virtue. They had other traits far less agreeable than these. In separating from Rome and fleeing from the Bishops of the Kingdom they only succeeded in finding a John Calvin, whose fanaticism and intolerance merely served to form their little community into one of

ZUTA'S CHECKS TO SENATOR EXPOSED

Two for $200 Each Found in Gangster's Strong Box by State Attorney

Chicago, Aug. 19 (AP)—Two checks signed by the slain gangster, Jack Zuta, each for $200 and each made payable to State Senator Harry W. Starr of the Thirteenth Illinois district, were dug from the Zuta strong-box today and made public by the state's attorney.

One check was dated October 5, 1926, and the other October 16 of the same year.

Senator Starr was chairman of the legislative committee which last year investigated the "whooper" records of the Chicago sanitary District.

The endorsements on the checks have not been identified as in Starr's handwriting, the state's attorney said, but Starr has been asked to appear and explain the use of his name on the Zuta papers.

At the time of the attack, Fitzgerald was warning the women's club at Onset of "too much Republicanism at the State House." He made no reference to Ely.

adopt that idea in connection with others, not Chinese.

Working in a tunnel under construction near Madrid, a Spanish workman, Antonio Camacho, 34 years old, was the case of dynamite, with many workers near it, had caught fire. Saying nothing, he carried it out of the tunnel and was blown to atoms. The other workmen were saved.

His name won't be remembered for five minutes, but it is just as well to print it at least.

No other name will be remembered either, for that matter, who this earth is a million or two years older.

The nation may be much better off for the recent sweeping out in Wall Street. But Wall Street and the farmers don't yet know it.

The stock market has been in the doldrums, and yesterday cotton dropped $2 a bale, to the lowest price since 1921, below 11 cents a pound.

Copper, cotton and other products cannot remain indefinitely at a price lower than the cost of production. But that truth doesn't help those compelled to sell, now.

HINT SUICIDE THEORY IS REJECTED

Chicago Packer's Son Said to Have Been Shot in Struggle at the Sanitarium

Dr. Edward S. Cowles, formerly of Boston, proprietor of the New York sanitarium in which William P. Swift was reported to have killed himself, was called with others to testify before the medical examiner in New York city today.

Dr. Charles G. Norris, chief medical examiner, is considering the possibility that young Swift, son of Louis F. Swift, Chicago meat packer, was shot in a struggle for possession of a gun.

The medical examiner expressed surprise that a final autopsy, performed before the body was taken to Chicago, failed to reveal traces of alcohol.

When the death of Swift in Dr. Cowles' sanitarium was reported, police said they were told he had suffered from alcoholism.

IS HARVARD GRADUATE

Dr. Cowles is well known in Boston and New England having figured in the news here several times.

He again came into prominence in 1910 when he was complainant in a court-martial of Paymaster Auld and Post Asst. Surgeon Robnett at the Boston Navy Yard.

Paymaster Auld had knocked Dr. Cowles down at a navy yard dance for exhibiting the photograph of a naval officer, which he declared the physician had obtained in a dishonorable manner.

'GHOST' WIFE'S FRIEND SOUGHT

Montpelier, Vt., Aug. 19—Mrs. Stella Randall Waldbridge Bunker, friend of Catherine Rockwell Packard, was sought today by State Detective Edwin C. Brown as another link in the long chain of "possible missing girls" through which he hopes to solve, eventually, Vermont's "ghost" murder.

He did not question Mrs. King, but stated his mission ended when he found her alive. In addition to Mrs. Bunker, he is seeking the whereabouts of an Esther Hill, a girl with whom King was friendly.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Packard, "Romeo," Harrison "Hank" Smith and Mrs. Hilda Waldbridge are still confined in Windsor County Jail today awaiting hearings on statutory charges Sept. 5, that grew out of information gathered in the questioning of the four after Mrs. Packard stunned the State with her return when she was listed as a buried suicide.

Sullivan Is Ineligible, Scharton Charges

Charges made to eliminate Harold W. Sullivan from the race for the Democratic nomination for attorney-general, were filed today by Atty. William R. Scharton, rival candidate.

Scharton, who is in a three cornered fight with Henry P. Fielding and Sullivan, the two latter former assistant district attorneys of Suffolk County, filed a protest with the State ballot law commission.

He protested Sullivan's name going on the ballot on the ground that he has not complied with the requirements of Article 18, Constitution of the Commonwealth, in that he has not been an inhabitant of the state five years next preceding his election or appointment.

PROTEST BELATED

In view of the fact that the time limit for filing protests expired last Friday, however, there is some question as to whether Scharton's complaint will be acted on.

The ballot law commission meets tomorrow at 10 a. m., at which time it will hear a number of protests.

Scharton quoted the pertinent part of the law as follows:

"No person shall be eligible to either of said offices unless he shall have been an inhabitant of this Commonwealth five years next preceding his election or appointment."

He charged that the records of the Supreme Court, Appellate Division, Second Judicial Dept., Brooklyn, N. Y., show that Harold J. W. Sullivan was admitted as an attorney and counsellor-at-law at that place June 25, 1926, and his residence given as 399 St. John's Pl., Brooklyn.

SAYS HE'S SAME MAN

The records further show, according to Scharton, that Harold J. W. Sullivan when applying for permission to practice before the New York courts gave his previous residence as 20 Taft st., Boston, from 1896 to 1917.

Under the rules of the Court of Appeals of New York for admission of attorneys, Sullivan proved by his own affidavit, Scharton charged, that he was an actual and not a constructive resident of New York for not less than six months immediately preceding his admission to the New York bar.

He further admitted that Harold J. W. Sullivan is the same person known as Harold W. Sullivan, candidate for the Democratic nomination for attorney-general.

Editor Sees Light Beams Lifting Huge Weights

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 19 (AP)—Beams of light, used for centuries only as weapons against darkness, are destined to lift great burdens from the shoulders of mankind in the industrial realm, Keith Kenney, editor of Electronics, told the Institute of Radio Engineers today.

Already light rays controlling photoelectric cells are doing important jobs in industry and science, he said, and vacuum tubes, which measure thickness, noise, pressure and vibration, are being widely used in transportation.

Lieut.-Col. A. G. Lee of London said a radio receiving set was not necessary to receive radio programs. Only a loud speaker is needed on a system of radio-telephony. Capt. W. C. Watts, of the Philadelphia navy yard and who for two years was in command of the U. S. Colorado, was the speaker. He sketched the progress of naval affairs from the time of the doughty old Olympia, Admiral Dewey's flagship, to the present. He urged the veterans to support the building program of the navy, declaring its importance could not be overestimated.

"In the period since the Spanish-American War," said Capt. Watts, "the navy has progressed in rapid strides, and its building program, to be shortly announced, will be an opportunity to build a navy on a sound, comprehensive basis.

"I know that you Spanish War veterans believe in an adequate navy as a part of the preparedness to which you have dedicated this day, and I hope you will use your individual efforts to support the plan and help mold general public opinion for it."

Ex-Mayor Walsh Calls Casassa Revere Regime 'the Worst Ever'

Graft and corruption are rampant in Revere while law enforcement officers of the city, seized by a "strange lethargy," remain inactive, it was charged today by Dr. John E. Walsh, former mayor of Revere.

Branding the present administration as the worst in Revere's history, Dr. Walsh placed the blame for "wide open gambling dens" and "speakeasies in every section of the city" directly upon Mayor Andrew J. Casassa, whom Walsh sponsored as his successor only two years ago.

NOT AFTER OFFICE

The charges made by Dr. Walsh, who explained that he is not a candidate for any political office, were the aftermath of the fatal gun battle waged by rival gangs in the Revere Veterans' clubhouse last Friday.

A warrant charging Camillo Giuffre of the North End with the murder of Morris ("Nate") Lefler in the gang battle was sworn out in Chelsea district court today by Capt. William E. Tappan and Lieut. Cornelius Cronin of the Revere police. It was served on the wounded gangster at the Chelsea Memorial hospital.

Police said the other two wounded men, James Preston and Harry Goldstein, will be held as material witnesses.

"Mayor Casassa declared that criticism of his administration is made by political office seekers," said Dr. Walsh. "Well, I am not an office seeker and I do not hesitate to say that Mayor Casassa has given Revere the worst administration in its history.

SHOULD KNOW CONDITIONS

"The Mayor says he is satisfied with conditions in the city and defies anyone to come forward and offer evidence to show there are high-powered gambling and numerous speakeasies in Revere.

"My guess is that Mayor Casassa knows about them already and if he doesn't he should resign his office at once. I know about them when I was mayor and the present incumbent has the same sources of information as were available to me.

"Before he took office I, as mayor of the city, introduced him to a gathering as the man whom I believed would give the city a clean and honest administration.

"I find now that professional gamblers and gunmen make their rendezvous here; that they are not molested in the slightest degree by the police; that speakeasies are flourishing in every corner of the city and that slot-machines are openly played in corner grocery stores where children as well as grown-ups may gamble.

HOUSECLEANING NEEDED

"I say that Mayor Casassa could have cleaned gangsters and gunmen out of the city if he had instructed his officers to go ahead and do their duty. I did that very thing when I was mayor and Capt. William E. Tappan came to me and told me that John Prokas was run ing a big game.

"Capt. Tappan, then acting chief, told me that he had received word from higherups that I put the O. K. on the joint. I said to him: 'Captain, when anybody comes to me and passes me $75 a week and gives you $25 a week, then you'll know that I am playing ball with the racketeers.'

"Before that conversation, John Prokas had been running a game once or twice a week. I told Capt. Tappan to see Prokas and give him the word that I would not tolerate any more gambling in the bowling alley or any other place.

AGREED TO QUIT

"Prokas said 'Fair enough. Walsh has given me a good break and I know when to quit'.

"If Mayor Casassa had taken the same step Mr. Prokas would not have been running a game in the Veterans' Hall and there would have been no shooting.

"It is amusing to read of Mayor Casassa abhorring the branding by office-seekers of the fair name of Revere. He should realize that conditions in Revere demand public criticism and that they would continue and grow worse if they were allowed to continue as he has allowed them to continue unchecked.

"I have in my possession evidence that the mayor has infused an elasticity into the mayor's emergency fund which surpasses anything that could be imagined.

"He employs in his office a man who is barred by the civil service commission from holding such a position. Yet the mayor adroitly furnishes this man with his weekly wage through the medium of 'goods received in good order.' One of these bills signed by the mayor and a justice of the peace has the notation '18 weeks' services at $40 per week, total $686.50.'

"A little error in mathematics, but illustrative of the manner in which city matters are handled at City Hall.

"Certainly, if the mayor permits such a glaring error to be made over his own signature it is small wonder that the city is in the throes of such lawlessness as has seldom been witnessed in the East."

William M. Keevey, former city treasurer, and a candidate for mayor of Revere, also charged Mayor Casassa with incompetency and laxity in dealing with vice in the city.

"The mayor requests any person having evidence of gang control to bring them to his office. It seems strange that the chief executive of the city fails to see any evidence of liquor traffic and 'big-shot' gambling when hundreds of Revere citizens have ample proof of their existence.

DIVES NEAR CHURCH

"I refer Mayor Casassa to a thriving speakeasy directly opposite a Revere church. He can go there after midnight anytime and see the patrons making their way out. If he looks hard enough he can find a score of such places within a few blocks of City Hall.

"He professes to be ignorant of gambling in the city when small children all over Revere can play the slot machines in grocery stores. The rooms which were raided by officers, not of the Revere department, some time ago were the scene last Friday of the worst blot on the city's history, yet Mayor Casassa claims to be unaware that they were used by gun-toting gamblers.

"A sample of the depths to which Revere has sunken as a law-abiding community came to my attention in a story told of a raid on a grocery store a few weeks ago. The proprietor was arrested for operating a slot-machine.

"He protested, saying, 'the store across the street runs a machine. Why can't I?'

"And the officer replied, 'well, he's got the right machine.'"

The fate of the charter of Revere Post, V. F. W., will be settled at the national convention of the organization the first week in September, it was learned last night, when it was announced by the State Department, V. F. W., that no final decision would be made until the national council of administration meets at Baltimore.

CARDINAL URGES K. OF C. TO STUDY PURITANS TO LEARN LOYALTY

the most fanatical, arrogant and conceited that the history of this country has ever known.

They, who had suffered so much from persecution, became heartless persecutors themselves. They, who had abhorred the Inquisition, once settled here, lost no time in setting up an Inquisition of their own as relentless in its principles as the Inquisition of Spain, which they pretended to abhor. Alas for poor humanity, how easy it is to scoff and hate; how difficult it is to learn by experience the chief law of Christ, the law of love.

They exalted the Bible into a mere fetish and then interpreted it as suited their own convenience. They rebelled against spiritual authority only to become the most fanatical of tyrants. These are their outstanding deficiencies and shortcomings and it is well for the Massachusetts of today that these practical defects of the Puritans have little by little been supplanted by a kindlier, wiser generation.

No one wishes to diminish in the slightest degree the real sturdiness of character of these sturdy people, but neither is it lawful for history to falsify facts. Their best qualities, therefore, were the Christian virtues common to all true and sincere Christians. Their defects were their own.

Undoubtedly the underlying power which moved them to establish a new and strange concept of Christian practice was their desire for righteousness. But it is a fact, obvious to all who know the history of religious sects, that while goodness in itself is always beautiful and attractive, some misguided men, while flattering themselves in their own sense of righteousness and goodness, practice it in a manner to make it repulsive and hateful to others. The Pharisee was sure that he was righteous, so sure that he despised the Publican.

Indeed, the Pharisees of old made it their business to browbeat and despise those who, according to their standards, walked on a humbler, lowlier human plane than ourselves. But Christ pointed out the lesson centuries ago, that "he who exalteth himself shall be humbled, and he who humbleth himself shall be exalted."

There is a way of practicing goodness which brings happiness and the desire to emulate the good. There is equally a manner of distorting goodness into a monstrous bugbear, which serves only to frighten away instead of gathering in. Doubtless the Puritan knew the literal words of the New Testament with its constant lesson of love, but his interpretation of the New Testament was in terms of the wrath of judgment and vengeance upon enemies, as clearly expressed in the Old Testament of the Hebrew race.

OVERLOOKED GENTLENESS

There is something strikingly curious in the fact that their divines were constantly quoting the old law and the prophets, overlooking entirely the whole spirit of the gentleness, the moderation and the kindly heart of Christ. They called their Sunday the Sabbath. They gave Old Testament names to their children. It is little wonder that the sturdiness of their Christian character soon turned into the hard-heartedness of the ancient scribes.

They strove not to imitate the manners, practices and principles of the early Christians, or indeed of any Christians, ancient or modern. These, by their strange misconception, were labeled Romans and Papists; and they reverted for their ideals in government, behavior and business, to the harshest type of the old law which Christ came to fulfill and to transform.

All this we say in no spirit of harsh criticism but merely in enunciating a record which is clear to all who read. Their strange apprehension of the true Christian life, therefore, was warped by a fanaticism which in their daily life and in the laws they established was certainly far indeed from reflecting the moderation of patience and the kindliness which the Christian law inculcates.

BANISHED ALL ARTS

Out of their daily social and family life they banished all the arts. Music, painting, sculpture, in their eyes, were sinful and leading to sin. The humane tendencies of the social and the family life were frowned upon until life itself was made almost too difficult to bear. They had turned their backs on all that Catholic art, music and architecture had reared into glorious examples in old Catholic England. And all this, not merely through a sweet and gentle love of simplicity of life, but by a hard fanaticism which reduced everything that Rome had created into a form of sinful idolatry.

They lost, therefore, nearly everything that sweetens life and makes goodness beautiful, wholesome and attractive. What they gained was a sour stubbornness and steadfastness to lay the foundation of a commonwealth in which only hard work and harsh duty were recognized as the highest virtues. Such a commonwealth, thus bereft of every charm of human life, might last while the builders lasted, but it is beyond the power of human effort to perpetuate in human life only inhuman traits.

In a word, it is inconceivable that the Massachusetts of today, 300 years after its foundation, could be identical in any sense with the Massachusetts of 1630, and it is well that it is not.

NOT LACKING IN PRAISE

The descendants of these sturdy people, by development, travel and commerce, soon realized that their forefathers were worthy of all praise for their good intentions, the hardships they endured and the foundation they built. They realized that the Puritan origin of this colony was a reaction in extreme.

Little by little the eternal desire for equilibrium and equipoise between extremes gained its place in the life of the colony. Life goes on and the world moves forward, so year by year the harsh and hard qualities of Puritanism became more and more humane; and the social, economic and religious life of the people turned again to more normal lines.

And so we of today, though of another race and of the old religion, while conscious of the extremes to which Puritan misguided had led the founders in 1630, are not lacking in praise, gratitude and understanding of the best that that hardy and sturdy people accomplished. Puritanism was an extreme which unchecked, was bound to lead to fanaticism.

We wish we could say that there was nothing of this ungenial, uncongenial spirit left in America. But alas, from time to time, we are made only too conscious of it by the enactment of laws and statutes which still indicate the spirit of the Old Testament and not that of the New.

History proves that goodness and virtues and righteousness cannot be forced on a people by statutes or by machine guns. But while we shudder at the fierce austerity of Puritan life, we would do well not to forget that luxury and wealth may lead to the corruption even of the best, and destroy the very foundation of this nation, founded by sturdy men in poverty and privation.

The mistake the Puritans made was to confound the gift and its use with the abuse of the gift. Our nation has become rich, the richest perhaps in the whole world. It would be a crime in our abundance to forget that the luxury to which wealth often leads, is the first step to decadence and degeneracy, personal and national.

The Puritan, it is true, had a hard and harsh sense of duty and of the force of law. It would seem from indications all around us that that sense is growing weaker instead of stronger. The Puritan venerated his religion such as it was. It would appear from what we see about us that this virtue is not growing in their descendants.

RELIGIOUS TEACHING

The Puritan founded his schools. They were not the first public schools, though sometimes we are informed by those who know little of history, that they were. The historical fact is that the first public schools opened to all classes were founded by Charlemagne at Aix, under the direction of Irish monks eight centuries earlier. And though founded by an emperor, these first public schools were entirely democratic in their spirit and attended by both the children of the nobility and the children of the peasant. In fact, Charlemagne himself frequently assisted at the recitation and held up to the youthful nobles for imitation the diligence and ability of the children of the poor.

The Puritans insisted upon their children being instructed in their own faith. We might well call this to the attention of some of our own Catholics of the wealthier class, who sacrifice the religion of their children to the pure worldliness of the so-called fashionable schools. The Puritan, whatever his failings, was a man who stood straight for his principles. It was that uprightness and sturdiness that gave strength to him and to his community.

Some of our present day Catholics might well take a lesson from that page and realize that not all the wealth they acquire, whether honestly or dishonestly, will purchase the sincere respect of their fellow citizens, if as they grow in riches, they shrink in loyalty to their faith and civic duty.

In other words, while we of Massachusetts of today differ in a thousand ways from the religious and social principles and methods of the Puritan founders, we nevertheless pay them due credit for the simplicity of their lives, the sturdiness of their character and the firmness of their loyalty to their faith and to their government.

WELCOME TO BOSTON

Dear Knights: Again welcome to Boston and the Bay Colony. Read here something of the story of the Puritans' life and the lesson certainly will strengthen your faith which was not his faith. The fruits of that study will, I am sure, awaken in all of you a greater desire to exemplify in your lives a high religious purpose, a sturdy honesty, a love for simplicity and abhorrence of luxury and the vulgar display of wealth.

It will teach you a firm loyalty to your Church and the religious education of your children. It will enliven in your hearts a sturdier loyalty to the See of Peter and to all religious and civil constituted authority. Thus will you give an example of fine Catholic citizenship true to country and to God.

Knights of Columbus Delegates Attend Mass at Cathedral

DELEGATES TO THE KNIGHTS of Columbus convention, now in annual session here, accompanied by their ladies, heard Cardinal O'Connell praise the lives of the Puritans in his address of welcome at the convention mass at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross this morning. SWIMMING RACE ENTRIES SET NEW RECORD

Entries for the Boston Evening American's girls' and women's swimming races, to be held in Charles River Basin Saturday, August 23, are closed.

The largest number of contestants ever to participate in any similar meeting in New England have guaranteed their presence by making entries.

They include some of the speediest mermaids in this section, together with many other girls who have yet to win their laurels, with a large sprinkling of children under 14.

Every precaution will be taken to prevent accidents from marring the success of the meet. Fast launches of the Metropolitan District Commission, under the supervision of Capt. Albert Chapman, will patrol the course. Ten life-boats will also be on hand, each boat containing expert life savers.

The swift craft of Charles E. Phelan will carry judges and other officials.

On shore preparations have been made to accommodate a record-breaking crowd. A large detail of metropolitan police will be on duty to keep order and see that no one falls into the water.

The sweep of the Esplanade provides plenty of room for as many spectators as care to view the races.

Late entrants included Helen Johns, New England 100-yard champion; Esther Morison, New England fancy diving champion; Florence Hatteraly, 100-yard breast stroke champion; Bernice Taylor, New England junior 220-yard champion, and Anna Tully, New England junior 300-yard medley champion.

Somerville's baby show continued today, with scores of mothers bringing their children to Summerfield's Davis sq. store to enter the contest being staged with the co-operation of Mayor John J. Murphy, the Somerville Visiting Nurses' Association and the Board of Health.

The show will close tomorrow. As a final feature, it is planned to have a baby parade from the City Hall to the well-known furniture store, where Mayor Murphy will award the prizes.

These include two awards of $50 in gold, two of $25 and two of $10, in addition to blue and pink ribbons. It is estimated that more than 1000 babies will compete. The age limit is three years and entries are not confined to Somerville.

PETER BUKIN LEADS IN CADDY GOLF

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS
FOR SPORTS—CALL LIBERTY 4000 TUESDAY, AUGUST 19, 1930 FOR SPORTS—CALL LIBERTY 4000

MR. BOSTON
by JACK CONWAY

Mr. Boston stood in front of the Scituate Golf Club watching Jack Leary, able pro, giving golf lessons to three youngsters.

A tiny slip of a girl took a cut at the agate and cracked it out 150 yards. Mr. Boston later discovered that the girl was only seven years old.

Jack Conway

A freckled face boy next smashed away and the ball rolled just the 150 yard marker. This youngster was also only seven.

Mr. Boston edged over to where Leary was standing.

"These kids certainly sock the ball," said Mr. Boston.

"I find that boys and girls are good at driving and also when using the irons for long shots," declared Leary. "Most of my kids reach the green in four.

"They have their troubles when they are just outside the green. In their desire not to kill the ball, they are liable to dribble it. They are also poor at putting. Perhaps the youngsters are jammed with too much nervous energy. They like to take a healthy poke at the ball and how they make the old agate travel."

Mr. Boston asked Leary how youngsters, as well as grown ups, could improve their putting.

"There isn't any special style for putting," replied Jack. "I favor a style by which one keeps the putter between the legs. In this way one can see the hole. The average golfer cannot see the hole when he is putting with a swinging motion.

"I have been getting a kick out of watching the entries pour in for the Hearst Junior Golf Championship. With almost 400 boys on deck, Bill Grimes is going to have his hands full next Monday at Wollaston. He will need a flock of traffic cops to keep that gang moving.

Once Hit Golf Ball Out of Rubber

"What would you do, Mr. Boston, if you were in a tournament and you cracked a ball into a newspaper which was on the fairway?"

"Take a sock at the paper and say a prayer that the ball would get clear," responded the veteran.

"That's the ruling I made during a ladies' match here the other day," chirped Leary. "I had a precedent to go by. Years ago while I was playing in a golf tournament I dropped my drive right into a straw rubber which somebody had dropped on the fairway. I closed my eyes and whanged the rubber for all I was worth. The ball hopped out of the rubber and carried a fair distance.

"I believe it would be a good idea for all golf clubs to adopt uniform rules. At the various inter-club matches at Scituate there is usually some dispute over the rules. Every club has its local rules and they often cause considerable conflict. It would take one with the wisdom of a Solomon to iron out all the difficulties.

"Too many people are anxious to take lessons in golf that Sunday is the only day on which I can step out and bang the ball around to my heart's content. I am on the job every morning at 8 o'clock and give lessons until dark. The golf craze has certainly caught on."

Boston Garden to Give Local Boxers a Chance

"I notice," said Mr. Boston, "that Matchmaker Alex MacLean of the Boston Garden has decided to feature local boxers in the future. This is in line with the Boston Evening American's recent drive against some of the poor matches which have recently been offered in this city.

"Two outside boxers have been the principals in most of the unsatisfactory ring contests which have been held here. When two local boxers have been battling, or one local ring warrior has been pitted against an invading boxer, the fans usually have been furnished with action.

"Henry Lamar and Marty Gallagher, who collide at Braves Field on next Tuesday night, have both been making their homes in this city. The fans know what they are capable of doing in the ring and can rely on their own judgment as to what is liable to happen once the gong sounds."

GAMES TONIGHT

Newton at Somerville, Lincoln Park.
Hyde Park at Allston, South Playground.
Revere at Jamaica, Carolina ave.

Four important games are scheduled for this evening in the Hub Twilight League. With six teams having a mathematical chance of getting into the playoff, the competition from now to the close of the season should be more than lively.

The league-leading Hopedale club of Allston entertains the Hyde Park team at the Smith Playgrounds, Allston, tonight. Newton Upper Falls, first-half titleholder, plays the Somerville City Club at Lincoln Park; Revere goes to Jamaica and Mt. Hope will be at Roslindale.

At present the Hopedale team, winners of nine games in their last ten starts, tackles the Hyde Park team with an eye toward sewing up the second half race. Hyde Park, being one of the teams that has a chance to win the second leg, will furnish plenty of opposition. Ed Manning and George Corrigan appear to have the pitching assignments for the home and visiting clubs respectively.

Arthur "Skinny" Graham, the 48-year-old veteran, gets his second fling at the Newton Upper Falls when the first half winners play at Lincoln Park. Last Tuesday Graham beat Newton in his debut for Somerville and hopes to duplicate the feat. Tom Bridgey, one of the steadiest Newton pitchers, will furnish the hurling for Newton.

HOUGH'S NECK NINE CHAMPS

The Hough's Neck playground nine of Quincy today won the Junior League championship of the Granite City, defeating the Elm st. playground team, 4 to 3, in nine innings. The original games of the playground teams are slated as seven game contests but this affair was tied up at the end of the seventh and the two extra innings were necessary to break the deadlock.

Lawrence Spillane, pitcher of Hough's Neck, was credited with his seventh win of the city league games by his win today. Bill Harris, regular battery mate of Spillane, caught well.

Falmouth Wins 3rd Straight Game

Falmouth, Aug. 19—Falmouth continued its rush toward the Cape league pinnacle when it trounced Orleans, 8 to 1, for its third straight league win. Lefty Seddon pitched another good ball game for Falmouth, while Joe Freitas, Comiskey, and Sheehan provided the necessary punch.

McLarnin and Singer to Fight

New York, Aug. 19 (INS)—Jimmy McLarnin, welterweight boxing champion, will meet Al Singer, world's lightweight champion, in the Yankee Stadium here on Sept. 11, the New York boxing commission decided today.

Singer's title will not be at stake, since under the terms of the agreement signed by the two fighters, McLarnin must enter the ring at 152 pounds.

Articles agreeing to the fight between Singer and McLarnin, the commission ruled, call for the contestants to meet Tony Canzoneri for the title on Nov. 18. The championship battle will also be staged in New York.

Canzoneri and Singer must post $5000 forfeit bonds for their fight before Friday of this week, the commission ruled.

Suarez Takes on Flowers Tonight

New York, Aug. 18 (AP)—Justo Suarez, Argentine lightweight, goes after the third straight victory of his American campaign at the Queensboro stadium tonight in a 10-round bout with Bruce Flowers, hard-hitting negro from New Rochelle, N. Y.

Suarez began his fistic invasion with a verdict on points over Joe Glick and then pounded out another decision victory over Herman Ferlick of Kalamazoo, Mich., last week.

Hall Wins in Public Tennis

Washington, Aug. 19 (AP)—Robert Hall of Louisville won in the first round of the eighth annual public parks tennis championships today by defeating Jack Maksky of Providence, 6—7, 6—1, 6—4.

Eastern hopes of winning the national women's tennis championship brightened today when Marjorie Morrill of Dedham, Mass., one of the leading players of this part of the country, made her debut in the title tournament with a smashing victory in two straight love sets over Clara Zinke of Cincinnati.

Miss Morrill needed only about 22 minutes to subdue Miss Zinke, only two of the 12 games being carried to deuce. Her victory carried Miss Morrill into the third round of the tournament as both players drew byes in the opening round yesterday.

While the New England player had been heavily favored to win, few in the small gallery of about 300 expected her to shut out the slender Cincinnati star without a game. She accomplished the feat by splendid tennis in which flat, speedy drives were alternated with soft trap shots that often went for clean placements. When Miss Zinke tried to take the net Miss Morrill usually passed her cleanly or forced her into errors.

Mandell Breaks With His Manager

Chicago, Aug. 19—Sammy Mandell, former world's lightweight champion, broke with Eddie Kane, his manager for nine years and will continue to box under his own management, Kane's contract does not expire until July 6, 1931. He says he will collect his share of Mandell's ring earnings until the expiration of the contract.

Kane said Mandell has earned $400,000 during their nine years of association.

ALLISON WINS IN NEWPORT SINGLES

Newport, R. I., Aug. 19 (AP)—Wilmer Allison, Davis Cup doubles player, became the first player to enter the fourth round of the 14th annual Newport Casino invitation singles tennis play here today, when he scored an easy 6—3, 6—1 victory over Edward Jenkins of New York.

Jenkins qualified for his third round match on a default awarded when Fritz Mercur of Bethlehem, Pa., withdrew from the tourney. Gregory Mangin of Newark, seeded seventh in the list of 10 headed by Big Bill Tilden, the defending champion, followed Allison, number three, into the fourth bracket on the default that followed the withdrawals of Julius Seligson, New York and Judge Beaver of Gainsville, Ga.

Tilden tenderly nursed his injured hip during his 26 game match with John S. Millen, husky New York youngster and by applying pressure at the proper time gained an easy victory by 8—6, 7—5, to move into the fourth round with the other leaders.

Johnny Van Ryn, another Davis Cup player, reached that bracket by defeating Dave Jones, of New York in an extra set match 3—6, 6—1, 6—3.

The foreign seeded list lost its top-ranked player when Ted Burwell, Charlotte, N. C., defeated H. G. N. Lee of England, 3—6, 9—7, 8—6, in a first match continued from last night.

When the rain stopped the opening day's play, each had a set and Burwell was slightly ahead in the third one. The Southerner held Lee Swinker for an even dozen games this morning, broke down his service in the thirteenth and then held his own to capture the match game.

Eddie Jacobs Eliminates Canadian Cup Player

Disaster then overtook two more on the foreign list. Eddie Jacobs, Baltimore, obtained a 6—4, 6—4 victory in his third round match with Marcel Rainville, the Canadian Davis Cup player and J. S. Oliff of England bowed before the accurate drives of young Bryan Grant of Atlanta 6—0, 2—6, 6—1.

The two remaining Britishers were strong enough to advance. E. R. Avory defeated Eugene McCauliff, Dallas, Tex., 6—3, 7—5, in a third rounder, and F. J. Perry eliminated Jack Tidsall, Los Angeles, 6—2, 6—3 in their second round duel.

Sydney Wood, outstanding New York youngster gained his bracket in the fourth round with an easy 6—3, 6—2 victory over George K. Churchill of New York. Clifford Sutter of New Orleans, the intercollegiate and eastern grass court champion, kept pace with the New Yorker by eliminating the associated Dr. Feiblman, New York, in almost the same smooth fashion. 6—2, 6—3.

Wilbur Coen, Jr., of Kansas City had a stubborn battle with Gustave H. Danneker, Jr., St. Louis, before he gained the 9—7, 2—6, 7—5 victory that put him center into the fourth round with the other favorites. F. J. Perry became the second Britisher to enter that round when he defeated Richard Lewis of New York, 7—5, 6—2.

BOUTS TONIGHT AT DILBOY FIELD

Another amateur boxing tournament, under the auspices of the Somerville City Employes' A. A., will go on tonight at Dilboy Field, West Somerville, with the first bout starting at 7:30.

The show has to get under way early, due to a ruling of the board of aldermen of Somerville, which states that bouts cannot run after midnight, and the large entry list necessitates an early getaway.

The he.vyweight class will be the feature. Al Dean, Medford; Frankie Shilolkie, Somerville; Paul McNamara, Allston and Ted Johnson, Quincy, will compete in this division among others.

The 118-pound division has Teddy Ferguson, Somerville; Eddie Cutone, Somerville; John Lynch, Somerville; Larry Zangler, East Boston; Vincent Curry, Boston; Chuck Mullen, Lynn; Ed Nelson, Dorchester, and Madeo Palcski, Lawrence.

John Bruno, Revere; Johnny Mack, Taunton; John Brown, Boston, and Joe Grante, Boston, stand out in the 135-pound category. Warren Belden, Cambridge; Ed Moran, Somerville; John Silva, Taunton, and Tom Fuoco, Lawrence, are in the 147's. Jim Canny, Cambridge; Joe Marsh, Cambridge; Rob Allen, Dorchester, and Willie Baker, Boston, are the middleweight leaders.

Twenty N. E. Athletes Will Seek National Crowns

The New England group of 20 athletes, candidates for national crowns at Pittsburgh this Friday and Saturday, will leave for the Smoky City Thursday afternoon, at 4:30, under the care of Jack Ryder and George V. Brown, trainer and manager respectively.

Of this group, 17 won the right to compete in the nationals by winning in the New England championship at Quincy last month. Added then are E. Monty Wells, former Dartmouth and present B. A. A. hurdle star, who was unable to compete at Quincy, Eddie Flanagan, giant hammer thrower from Holy Cross, New England intercollegiate champion, and Eddie Blake, former Dartmouth quarter and half-miler.

Milde, Worcester Tech star this year, is already in Pittsburgh, and will compete in the meet as a New Englander, although he is not officially included in the eastern party.

The following athletes will make the trip: George Morni, 100 and 220; Donald Fleet, 440 and relays; Charlie Sansone, 880 and relays; Paul Kanaly, mile; Tom McDonough, six miles; Don Fels, 120 and 220 hurdles; Monty Wells, 120 and 220 hurdles; Arthur Sager, javelin; John Wlodyka, shot put and discus; Martin, pole vault; Fobrier, running broad jump; John Morley, high jump; Ed Wilson, three-mile walk; Rip Black, hammer; Johnson, hammer and discus; Ormond, hop, step and jump; Ed Flanagan, hammer; Dana Smith, 440 and relay; Ed Blake, 440 and 880; Milde, 100 and 200 dashes.

After a number of time trials, Ryder picked Dana Smith, Don Fleet, George Morin and Charlie Sansone for his relay four. The veteran coach thinks this is the best possible combination and will not be at all surprised if his boys win and gain the right to compete for the United States against Great Britian in the International meet at Chicago Aug. 27.

Don Fleet, Boston College sophomore, will meet Reg Bowen, Pittsburgh flier, in the quarter-mile championship which is always one of the closest races on the program. Ryder thinks the world of his pupil's ability and gives him better than an even chance to win the crown.

BROCKTON BOY GETS 76 IN WOODLAND TOURNEY

By BILL GRIMES

Playing in the last threesome Peter Bukin, Brockton, turned in a 76 to lead the field at the end of the morning round in the annual Massachusetts Caddy championship today at the Woodland Golf Club.

Bukin was 38 each way, slipping one stroke over par at the fourth and fifth holes going out and at the eleventh, seventeenth and eighteenth coming in. He made up for two of his slips with birdies at the twelfth and thirteenth holes.

Bukin's card:

Out	4	4	5	4	4	4	5	5	—38
In	5	5	5	2	3	5	5	4	6—38—76

Joe Looney, Arlmont, who was in a second place tie with John Kelly, Brae-burn, with a 78 this morning took an 81 which gave him a total of 159. Although Looney was not up to his morning round, whatever chance he had of winning the title slipped away from him at the 15th hole where he put two balls out of bounds taking a six.

Phil Fahey, the defending champion, wound up with an 87 for his first round. He was out in 43 and needed 44 to get home. From his morning round, in all probability, Fahey had passed up his caddie crown.

Eddie Martin Shoots 79

Eddie Martin was out in 41 with a six on both the third and ninth holes, but he came back in 38 to be the runner-up to Looney with a 79 which was five strokes better than his twin brother, Leo.

Johnny Quinn of Chestnut Hill lost his chance to lead the field through his inability to put during the outward round. "Yama" was 41 to the turn and after starting back six, four, came home in 39 for an even 80.

Jimmy O'Leary, another Chestnut Hill caddie, was two under par going to the ninth hole, but a nine came pushed his score well into the threes, was over with his third, short with his chip and wound up with a seven, to be out in 38. To cap the climax a lost ball and a couple of bad shots at the 10th started him home with an eight.

Bulow claims he is Schmeling's legal manager, having signed a contract on Oct. 2, 1928, to run for two years, under which the German baker was to engage only in matches arranged by Bulow.

Winner of Hearst Tourney Can Claim Junior Title

FOREMOST PLAYERS ENTERED

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

Though no official golfing title goes to the winner of the William Randolph Hearst Junior Golf Tournament which starts next Monday at the Wollaston Golf Club, Montclair, nevertheless the victor in this tournament can lay claim to the junior championship of all New England.

For the Hearst battle finds entries from all over this group of states and many of them are rated as the foremost junior linksmen in their particular sections.

When the tournament gets under way on Monday morning at 9 a. m. there will be more than 400 entries ready to tee off and to start the long battle for the Hearst honors.

No larger field has ever been assembled anywhere in this region for a junior championship and the winner in this flock of ambitious club swingers can surely be awarded the title of New England's best junior golfer.

Despite the fact that the finishing line for entries was put up last Saturday at midnight, the mailman continues to bring in stacks of applicants for the tournament.

But these cannot be accepted. For the field has reached enormous proportions already and it is going to be a huge job for the golf editor of the Boston Evening American to arrange starting times for all and to try to get them over the course in one day.

Quite a few lads are going to be disappointed because they didn't get in before the entries closed. The starting times and foursomes will be published in these pages sometime before Monday and you'll be able to find out then whether or not your entry reached this office on time.

HEARST TROPHIES THEIR TARGET

Ed Fisher

Tom Finan

ED FISHER AND TOM FINAN, caddies at Chestnut Hill and both 13 years of age, will be among the large field that tees off in the second Hearst Junior Golf Tournament at Wollaston next Monday. They are exceptionally sound golfers for their age.

LINKS EASY TO REACH

The Wollaston Golf Links, situated in Montclair, is handy to Boston. Wollaston can be reached in less than three-quarters of an hour from the heart of the city.

Buses run from the Ashmont station of the Dorchester-Cambridge subway to the scene of battle. The Quincy car from Fields Corner station also takes one within reach of Wollaston. And there are trains from the South Station that stop at Montclair, where the course is located, and which reach this destination in less than a half-hour.

The starting times for the second Hearst junior golf championship will be published in Saturday's paper. Every entry must report at the time assigned. Be sure to get a copy of the paper.

Grier's Daughters and Sons in Demand

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 19 (AP)—The progeny of John P. Grier, which once nearly beat Man o' War, are in heavy demand among horsemen.

Horton Smith's Golf Lessons

Famous Young Missouri Professional Illustrates and Describes the Mechanics and Technique of Play

No. 10—PUTTING GRIP

No. 11—STANCE

No. 12—PUTTING ADDRESS

The above depicts the putting grip of Tommy Armour, and the important thing to notice is that it differs from the driving grip in this respect—the fingers of the left hand are showing; in this photo two digits will be seen just above the V formed by the hands. This grip is worth copying.

Armour has a double overlap grip for putting, but many champions, including Bobby Jones, have the reverse overlap. This, or no overlap at all, suits most people for putting, as the right is the controlling hand, because the mind's command goes most immediately through the right arm in all naturally right-handed people.

In putting I do not have the left hand on top and I also employ the reverse overlap, with the forefinger of the left hand covering the little finger of the right hand.

The picture shows, by the way, the right shoulder is down and that the weight is more inclined to the right foot.

The stance is square and the right is the controlling hand because I am right-handed.

I will illustrate many of golf lessons with photographs of Tommy Armour, which precisely demonstrate details of correct play that should be known and practiced by all who would be good golfers.

Tommy Armour addresses the ball with the toe of his putter. The greatest putter of all time, the late Willie Park, did the same thing. Park's book on putting is a classic. Perhaps the best thing in it is that he admits he is the best putter in the world. If more of us could only believe we were good putters we would putt much better.

Remember, you are shooting at a memory of the hole which is rapidly fading. Be sure to take a good last look at the entrance to the cup and make a definite mental picture of the back of the can. Then shoot promptly!

Next putts are missed to the right of the hole. Addressing with the club's toes tends to offset that.

Another series by Horton Smith will appear in Thursday's Boston Evening American.

MALDEN BEATS PORTLAND, 12-7

Malden trounced Portland, 12 to 7, and Dorchester defeated St. John, 3 to 1, in the two Boston Twilight League games last night. Malden now leads the second half by two games and looks good to repeat its victory of the first half. The Atkinson outfit hammered Chick Frazier for 17 hits, with Ralph McCarthy, Georgetown captain, leading the attack with four hits including a triple.

Bobby Coombs held St. John to eight hits and struck out the same number. Currie made three of the St. John hits, including a triple and a double. Bill Clancy hit a triple and single for Dorchester.

Hines to Play Here in National Doubles

Wilbur F. Coen and Harris Coggeshall, who reached the semi-final round of the national doubles championship last year, have forwarded their entry for this year's tournament which starts next Monday at the Longwood Cricket Club.

Wilmer Hines of Columbia, S. C., national junior singles champion, will make his local debut, pairing with J. L. Beaver of Gainesville, Fla., as the Southern Association team.

George E. Abbott and Walter Weld were the 13th pair to register officially.

Troen Takes Lead in Handicap Shoot

Vandalia, O., Aug. 19—Frank M. Troen, Portland, Ore., took the lead in the class championship of the 31st Grand American handicap tournament when he broke 100 straight targets. The event calls for 200 targets.

E. M. Roudan, Canada, was a close second with 99.

Gallant Fox "Drug" Story Is Denied

Saratoga, Springs, N. Y., Aug. 19 (US)—William Woodward, owner of Gallant Fox, denies that his colt was beaten in the Travers through being a victim of some drug. It was rumored the horse was tampered with during his stay in Chicago. The trainer, Jim Fitzsimmons, also branded the tale as false.

Woodward said:

"If there had been anything wrong with Gallant Fox I would have known, and I have yet to hear. As far as investigating is concerned there is nothing to investigate."

'Twixt Tee and Cup

By BILL GRIMES

The starting times for the second Hearst junior championship will be published in next Saturday's Boston Evening American. Watch for your starting times.

Abe Mitchell, second assistant professional at the Belmont Spring Country Club, has established another record. He is the first player to throw a club on a Tom Thumb course.

Although the Portland Country Club is very anxious to retain Dan Horan, the former Massachusetts state handicapper, for next season, it is very likely that Derby Dan will be located at one of the Greater Boston clubs for 1931. Dan knows his golf and is an asset to any club.

Elmer Ward, the amateur champion of New England, and Jesse Guilford packed up their grips for Fred Wright, Massachusetts amateur king, and Billy McPhail yesterday at the Wollaston Golf Club. Playing an exhibition match as an extra attraction in the Knights of Columbus tournament, Ward and Guilford took Wright and McPhail into camp to the tune of 2 and 1.

Once again Charlie Donnelly showed that he is a leading golfer of the Worcester Donnellys by winning the K. of C. tournament at Wollaston with a 76. While brother Jim has been sticking close to his law books, Charlie Donnelly has been developing into one of the best amateurs in the Worcester district.

Jack Lowe, Woodland, is spending his vacation at Lake George, N. Y., where he is giving his golf game a real test.

IF John Alden had wooed his Priscilla wi' Mackintosh's Toffee three hunder years ago, he would na' been sae bashful in pleadin' his cause!

Toffee is a deelicious sweetmeat that fair "speaks for itself"—the swains o' today say there's a smile in every piece—'tis to be found in mair than three thousan' stores. Gallagher and Lamar to Clash

BOUT CARDED FOR NEXT TUESDAY

By RINGSIDE

Henry Lamar and Marty Gallagher, young heavyweights, have been signed to meet in a 10-round bout at a show to be staged by the Boston Garden at Braves Field on next Tuesday night.

Lamar first showed in this city as an amateur. He won the national title in the light heavyweight class. He has since put on weight and now scales 190 pounds.

Since turning pro, Lamar has engaged in 40 bouts. Jim Maloney is the only man who has beaten him.

Gallagher, like Lamar, scales around 190 pounds. He has been making his home in Boston for the past year. In the event he wins from Lamar, he intends to go after a bout with James J. Braddock.

It will be the third meeting between Lamar and Gallagher. The other matches took place at Baltimore and resulted in wins for Lamar after hard battles.

The services of Ring Larsen, who won the title in the middleweight class at the national amateur boxing championships, are being sought by Boston promoters. Larsen made his pro debut in a bout at Brockton. Ring's aggressiveness and punching power made him a big favorite with followers of amateur boxing.

Ernie Schaaf has signed a contract with the Argonne A. A. to meet Young Stribbling at the new Boston Arena on October 21 in the event he defeats Babe Hunt at Fenway Park on September 2. Stribling has already consented to appear in a bout here.

Harry Allen has been installed a favorite for his 10-round bout with Jack McCarthy which will be staged at Brockton on Thursday night. When these boxers recently collided at Brockton, Allen won the decision after 10 rounds of torrid battling.

Sammy Fuller will be well under 135 pounds when he meets Andy Callahan in a 10-round tussle at Tiverton, R. I., on next Monday night. As a result, Callahan's New England lightweight title will be at stake. Callahan has been guaranteed $2000 for the bout and is also getting a 25 per cent privilege.

COW PUNCHER ON POLO SQUAD

New York, Aug. 19—Herbert W. Williams, a Texas cow puncher, may win a place with the U. S. polo team which plays the British four next month.

Capt. Tommy Hitchcock announced a shakeup in the "Whites" or varsity combination, by which Williams replaces Earle A. S. Hopping at No. 2 for the next test match tomorrow at the Piping Rock Club.

Williams' entry into first-string company for the first time since the American test matches started marks the breakup of the quartet that has ridden generally together for the past two weeks.

In this lineup, hitherto regarded by polo critics as the one likely to oppose the British, Hopping had teamed with Eric Pedley, Capt. Hitchcock and Winston Guest. The latter trio will retain their positions at No. 1, No. 3 and No. 4, respectively, for the next test match. Hopping will ride at No. 2 with the "Reds," or Navy team, with "Pete" Bostwick at No. 1, Cecil Smith, another Texan, at No. 3, and Elmer Boeseke of California at back.

Temple Has Young Coaching Staff

Philadelphia, Aug. 4—Temple University's football team has one of the youngest coaching staffs in the country. Three varsity mentors and the head freshman coach's average is 29½ years. Head Coach Heinie Miller and Bert Bell, backfield teacher, are both 34 years of age, while John Da Grossa, head line coach, is 26, and Robert Pike, chief freshman mentor, is the "baby" of the staff, being only 24 years old.

Despite the youthfulness of the Owl tutoring staff, all four coaches have seen plenty of service. Bell and Miller, who played on the great Penn team of 1918, have been in the coaching business for 10 years, while Da Grossa has seen four years' service, and Pike, two.

Dilboy Post Plans Internationals

The Dilboy Post, V. F. W. of Somerville, is making preparations for their next show which will be held a week from Wednesday night at Dilboy Field, West Somerville.

It will be an international amateur tournament with Novia Scotia, Boston and New York represented. Nova Scotia and New York are expected to send strong teams composed of some of the best amateur mit-wielders in their sections. Boston's outfit will have their hands full.

'LIZA BETTER HURRY! By HAL COFFMAN

ST. AUGUSTINE NINE VICTOR

Three teams entered the semi-finals, and a fourth reached the quarter-finals as a result of the four games played in the Boston park department amateur baseball games last night.

St. Augustines of South Boston defeated Brighton T. T., 3 to 0, at Roxbury; Telephone Equipment nine won over Kemper Insurance, 6 to 2, and Gurnett & Co. triumphed over Mattapan Eagles, 7 to 1, to reach the semi-finals. The Elmwoods of Dorchester defeated the Epicures of Jamaica Plain, 2 to 1, thereby joining the right to meet Agawam A. A. in the quarter-finals.

Joe Ogle was the Frank Merriwell for the Gurnett nine, smashing a long home run with the bases loaded and two out in the third inning, to put his team far in the lead. Gurnett will meet the Equipment team Wednesday in the semi-finals.

St. Augustine scored all their runs in the third inning when Neal Connor's single drove in two tallies and Joe Benson tripled to score Connors. The Saints will meet the winner of the Agawam-Elmwood game on Thursday.

Cycling Derby at Revere Saturday

A 100 kilometer cycling derby is scheduled for Saturday night at the Revere Cycle Track. Seven riders will compete. The distance, 100 kilometers, is equal to 62½ miles.

The riders Saturday night will be George Chapman, Francis Kerman, Charley Jaeger, Franz Duelberg, Georgetti, Al Letournier and Caesar Debaets.

Charley Ritter, who beat Harris Horder recently, and Cecil Walker, for the title, will meet in a special sprint match of three one mile heats, and there will be a tandem race and other events.

Veteran Team to Report at St. John's

New York, Aug. 19—With the first game a week later than usual, a shorter schedule, and 17 of 19 lettermen returning to college, the football outlook at St. John's College, Brooklyn, is brighter this year than it has been in several years.

The Vincentians won but three of their ten games last fall and will not face Holy Cross, the only team they failed to score against, the last Saturday in September as usual.

St. John's dropped Holy Cross and Lehigh from its schedule and will play its first game at Dexter Park, its home field, against Niagara, Oct. 11.

There are only two regulars and two first-string substitutes of last year's team missing this fall. Coach Ray Lynch and assistants, Eddie Dooley and Phil Weiss, have at least one experienced man for every position on the team.

OVER THE PLATE

By JOE CASHMAN

Do star players on lowly clubs purposely lay down in the hope that they will be traded to some pennant contender?

That's the question that's ever uppermost in the minds of the followers of second division clubs boasting outstanding performers.

Opinion seems to be about evenly divided. Some fans are certain that no star is content with a losing club while others think that most great players do the best they can regardless of the club they happen to be with.

Your correspondent is inclined to trail along with the latter group. It is his observation that the average star player on a weak outfit while perhaps cherishing an ambition to be on a strong club, gives his all to win, day in and day out.

Doubtless, there are exceptions, but while we have heard of some, we have never seen one.

It isn't as tough for a great player to be tied to a poor ball club as most fans believe.

A star gets a star's salary whether on a good or bad club.

With a lowly club, he stands out over his mates and is the white-haired boy of the customers. With a good club, he is only one of several heroes.

Star's Life on Poor Club Not as Bad as it Seems

And most players would rather be the big frog in a small puddle than a little one in a big puddle.

Also, a star performer isn't under the great strain and worry with a lowly club that he would be with a pennant contender; is much surer of his job and doesn't have to stand nearly as much criticism or abuse if he happens to have an off day.

He realizes all this. He realizes that loafing with a tailender instead of resulting in his transfer to another club will probably result in him being suspended without pay.

So the majority of players, unless they have some personal grudge against their manager, are pretty well satisfied wherever they are and do all in their power to win all the time.

George Kelley May Play in His Fifth Series

It looks as though Long George Kelley, who saw service in four World Series as first baseman for the New York Giants, is going to get into another of the fall classics.

He was released a few weeks ago by the Cincinnati Reds, and when he signed up with Minneapolis after all the big league clubs had waived on him, it appeared certain that his career in "big time" was over, but the Chicago Cubs brought him back.

He could have been secured for $7500 when the Reds let him go, but the Cubs had to give Malcolm Moss, a most promising rookie pitcher, and another player to acquire him now.

Manager Joe McCarthy probably figures that his Cubs will against face the Athletics in the series this year and wants a heavy right-handed hitter to take the place of Charlie Grimm on first when Grove or Walberg is pitching for the Macks.

Experts Pick Bertha in Hambletonian

The dopesters figure that Hanover's Bertha, 2, 2:02, will trot in two minutes if forced to the limit in the Hambletonian Stake, which is to be decided at Goshen, N. Y., on Aug. 27.

Main McElwyn, 2, 2:02¾, regarded as the dangerous one in the field against the Hanover Shoe Farm filly, trotted a half in 58⅕ seconds at North Randall.

The boys think that any trotter with that sort of speed is dangerous. Voltaire, 2, 2:13½; Guy Day, 2, 2:07; Calumet Annette and Hollyrood Patsy, 3, 2:06, must not be entirely overlooked in the big race.

Harness Horses Are Still Popular

The fact that there will be over $100 official race meetings at which over $3,000,000 will be raced for this year, should be sufficient proof that the harness horses are still popular with the American public.

A few years back purses of more than $5000 were a rarity, but now several of the half-mile tracks are hanging up $10,000 purses, and purses of $5000 at the two-lap tracks are not uncommon.

Today, in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

DORCHESTER IN THIRD PLACE

St. Mark's defeated Cunningham Gym, 4 to 2, and Dorchester A. A. shut out Dorchester Catholic Club, 2 to 0, in the Dorchester Twilight League games last night.

The Dorchester win put that team in a tie for third place with Neponset Wanderers, while St. Mark's is just a few points out of first place.

Krauss, pitching for Dorchester A. A., turned in his second successive shutout and also his second two-hit game in a row, the other being registered against St. Mark's last week. The win proved costly to Dorchester, however, as Skee Sanford sustained a broken finger in the sixth inning. Baker doubled and tripled to score O'Connell with both runs.

Baltimore's Kick Is Overruled

Baltimore's protest of the Jersey City victory of July 26 has been overruled by President Charles Knapp.

Manager Maisel filed the protest when he saw Manager Nick Allen of Jersey City in the stands after he had been ordered from the park by Umpire Finneran.

Knapp pointed out in rendering his decision that while umpires may forfeit a game if a banished player does not leave the stands, it is not compulsory to do so.

Portland Trades With Sacramento

Portland, Ore.—Infielder Mack Hillis and Pitcher Roy Chesterfield have been traded by the Portland Beavers to the Sacramento Solons for Pitcher Ray Keating, according to announcement made by President Tom Turner of Portland.

Hillis was recently suspended by Portland for the second time this season and had expressed a desire to change clubs.

Dizzy Dean Signed by Huston Team

Houston, Tex.—Dizzy Dean, promising right-hander, who has been with St. Joseph of the Western League most of the season, has been obtained by the local club of the Texas League.

Dean won 17 games and lost eight for the weak St. Joseph entry.

Love or Wealth; Which Will Bring Happiness

Catherine Paige, 18-year-old Boston girl, tramped the streets and answered ads for two long months before she got her job. And then her salary was $20 a week.

A modern girl can't do much on $20 a week, but Cathie's [illegible]d a future. She was se[illegible]tary to Mr. Farnsworth, partner in the prominent firm of Vaughn & Farnsworth.

True, her boss was old enough to be her father; but old men are marrying young girls every day.

"Is there anyone else?" he asked her. "Anyone whom you love?"

She couldn't say there was. The only man she had ever cared for had forgotten her long ago. So she married the boss and became a rich man's pampered darling. The world called her "Lucky Girl," but her heart was bleeding.

She learned too late that money doesn't win the battle for happiness—that a $20 a week job with no future is better than being the wife of a millionaire while in love with another man.

Hazel Livingston, author of "Lucky Girl," claims that she has taken her heroine from real life and built the character through a series of episodes which she knows to be true.

"The world is full of such girls," Miss Livingston asserts. "Some cases reach the papers, but far more of them remain fortunately obscure. The number of girls who look for money instead of love is appalling!"

Miss Livingston has written a graphic novel around this vital theme, a story which is said to surpass even "Stolen Love" and "Forest Love," the serials which made her famous.

Don't miss "Lucky Girl," the most graphic account ever written of a modern girl trapped into marriage. Watch for "Lucky Girl" beginning Wednesday, tomorrow, in the Boston Evening American.

Farmhand's Captor Wins Tip Prize

Judy Is Given First Kiss by Tris

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Judith Archer is a country school teacher, 22, and good looking. She wants to be a college professor, while her mother would like her to go in the movies. But Judy lived a double life. She becomes interested in the story of a jewel robbery in London. She goes to New York and calls on Capt. Charley Marceau. He suggests Judy and her mother take a trip with him. She takes passage on Capt. Charley's ship for her mother and herself and draws all her money from the bank. Judy finds herself looking for the radio operator with the sea-green eyes—but he does not remember her at first. Then they spend hours together. Judy stumbles on a mystery at Halifax, and gets acquainted on the ship, with one of the actors.

CHAPTER 21

Judy drew a breath as if it had been her own body sent reeling by that ferocious impact, cowered against the wall in a numb horror. The wind rushed shouting over her head, harried by demons of darkness; it tore the wrap from her shoulders, set her hair astream.

She kept peering into the gloom of that high, deserted deck, senses quivering to the padded sound of blows. Two men clinging to each other, locked in deadly embrace—why? Who was this come dropping from the deckhouse roof upon Tris Millet's shoulders like a maddened ape?

Tris holding his own—no, the other had an advantage; had taken Tris by surprise, sent him plunging. Tris was on his feet, hurling himself upon the other, who seemed all arms and legs like a spider; now they scuffled, hanging together as in a crazy dance—lunged nearer; a fist shot so close she could feel the air it stirred on her cheek—crashed. Ah, Tris' chin—he went stumbling backward, striking out all the while. . . .

Judy Screamed
At Spidery Man

Judy screamed, then brought a strangled cry between chilled lips. It was muffled by the roar of wind and sea, but it cut like a blade between the two who struggled. Arms raised, shoulders crouching, they held themselves tensed, oddly resembling each other as they turned furious, glowering faces.

Now the shifting light was upon the spidery man, now it touched his little knitted cap, grease-smeared sweater. A sailor!

Something flashed in Judy's memory—the Public Gardens in Halifax—the man asleep on the bench at the end of the lane. The sailor asleep on the park bench and Tris walking into the Lane!

She threw back her head, screamed again—felt the scream go blank against a palm pressed on her mouth.

"Shut up—God—cut that"

Judy brought her open hand against a cheek—wrenched herself away—stared into a dark face bending to her own. That hoarse voice belonged to Tris; his arm held her, bound her shoulders so she could not move.

"Quiet, Judy, please" — His tone was gentler. "Rouse everybody—what's the sense of that?"

He took his hand from her mouth; half in a daze she saw that both men were watching her. They seemed to have forgotten each other or at least to have called a truce, waiting to see what she would do.

Shook All Over
Judy Is Overcome

But she could do nothing—only stand there, shaking all over. Suddenly Tris swept her in his arms, pressed her head down against his shoulder.

"You're frightened—never meant to speak so—not to you! Believe this, Judy"—

She pushed him away, gave a frantic look around. Wind and the thick, encompassing dark—crash of waves on the ship's rail. Only this and the two of them searching each other's faces.

"He's gone! Tris—do you see? He's gone!"

She began to cry, clinging to him, sobbing in a hysteria of relief. His arm tightened about her; he kept running his hand over her hair, murmuring, "Oh, now—it's all right—really all right. Nothing to think about; some deckhand come out to settle a score"

"Tris! He—he might have killed you! Jumping out of the dark. Oh, never forget that—

Information on Dorchester Boy Prodigy Earns $15 Award

One of the big news "tips" of the year wins for Harry L. Levy of 47 Stuart st. the first prize in the Boston Evening American News Tip Contest for last week.

Levy displayed far more than average nerve, wit and coolness when he called police to his store to get Joseph Stefanoski, alias Grabouski, with the alleged murderer of a Stow farmer and his wife standing almost at his elbow.

Rarely is an alleged slayer captured so quickly and so easily as was Grabouski, and if his arrest in itself had not been a big story, the drama of his capture would have been a colorful one.

No sooner was Grabouski led away by two policemen, than Levy telephoned to the Evening American and readers of this newspaper got the first news of the arrest and the only complete and accurate story of the method of his capture. Levy's red hot "tip" wins the first award of $25.

BOY PRODIGY TIP WINS

Second prize goes to Joseph McWilliams of 711 Washington st., Dorchester, for a "tip" on the 15-year-old Dorchester high school boy, David Campbell, who is to enter Harvard in the fall, having passed his entran e examinations with honors. This "tip" meant a good picture "layout" as well as an interesting story, and McWilliams well earned the $15.

James D. Conboy of 19 Potomac st., West Roxbury, took a photograph of a badly wrecked automobile, which also caught fire, following a crash on Blue Hill ave., and the picture, published in the Boston Evening American, gives the third prize of $10 to this alert Bostonian.

"Tips" in abundance are being telephoned to the Boston Evening American and the response to the appeal to readers to use and develop their "news sense," get in the running for the prizes and get the "kick" that goes with seeing their story in print is gratifying.

TIME IMPORTANT

One thing must be remembered. Time is an important element, and "first come, first served" must be the rule. Many "tips" require investigation and that makes time more important still.

And so if you see anything happen, or hear of it, if you know of something that would make an interesting feature or photograph, or if you have any information in connection with any of the big stories of the day—phone Liberty 4000, ask for the News Tip Editor, and give your name and address. If you wish, your name will be withheld.

Prize awards amount to $100 every week. The winners of the 25 prizes of $2 each in last week's contest are as follows:

SUSPECT TWO MURDERS IN DROWNING

Somerville Man and Friend Are Believed Slain and Robbed in Vermont

The drowning of Frank Larracey, Somerville sportsman, and Eugene Sears of Highgate Springs, Vt., in Lake Champlain on Friday was the subject of an inquest at St. Albans, Vt., today, following a suggestion that they were robbed and killed.

State's Atty A. B. Rowley and Sheriff W. G. Cetlin began an investigation after relatives of the victims said large sums of money were missing from the recovered bodies.

Missisquoi bay, scene of the tragedy near the Canadian border, is a favorite haunt of liquor smugglers.

KNOWN AS SPORTSMAN

Larracey conducted a large barber shop and bowling alley at 23 College ave., Somerville, and lived at 15 Morrison ave., in the same city. He had been known for many years as a sportsman.

Larracey went to Highgate Springs to fish in Lake Champlain and Thursday with Sears started out in a speed boat to go north up Missisquoi bay toward the Canadian border.

BOAT OVERTURNED

They had been stopping at a farm in Highgate Springs. They went off up the lake and did not return. A searching party went out looking for them on Friday and their speedboat was found overturned only a few hundred feet from the Canadian border on the American side.

The bodies of the two men were found floating in the waters of the bay not far from the boat. Both men were known to be strong swimmers and the bodies were found only a short distance from shore.

PLAN OFFERED BY ANDREW IS FAILURE, SHE SAYS

Rep. Martha N. Brooking, Dry in the Congress Fight, Is to Speak in Amesbury Church

Declaring that there is nothing new in the suggestion of Congressman A. Piatt Andrew of Gloucester for a substitute for prohibition, Representative Martha N. Brookings, Andrew's opponent, today revealed over the radio that she intends to go into the subject fully in Amesbury next Sunday night.

It was in Amesbury that Congressman Andrew made his initial speech in favor of repeal of the 18th amendment.

Mrs. Brooking's address next Sunday will be delivered at a union church service in the Congregational church.

Today she told her radio audience that she has repeatedly asked her opponent for a definite plan on a substitute for prohibition.

"To date it is not forthcoming, —instead he has offered suggestions which I will discuss as follows," she said.

"Elimination of profits from the manufacturer and sale of intoxicating beverages, heavy legal penalties for those who drink to excess, combined with the ostracism by society.

"No profits in the liquor business! This from a man with a doctor's degree in economics. If there is no profit at all, private capital will not be interested so that this suggestion means manufacture and distribution of intoxicating liquor by the government, a method that in the words of Senator Borah would put the foundation of the government

Continuing, she said:

"Now ponder the second suggestion. Heavy legal penalties for excessive drinking! If this had been a remedy for eliminating drunkards they would have long since disappeared from the land of the living."

She declared that if the Congressman has nothing better to offer as a solution, it is not unfair to say that the "mountain labored and brought forth a mouse."

3 CAMBRIDGE YOUTHS HELD

Three Cambridge boys were held without bail on murder charges today upon arraignment before Judge Edward A. Counihan in East Cambridge district court in connection with the death of Allen MacPherson.

They are John Costa, 18, of Main st., Theodore Kingslaw, 17, of Hampshire st., and Vito Ananis, 18, of Depot square, a taxi driver, star at Dodge Tech last year.

Costa was arrested today by special officers William Anderson and Thomas Leary, who took the stand in the court house in person.

Police allege that Kingslaw and Ananis confessed beating MacPherson and that a third man, a legal man, was present.

In court the three boys waived examination. The case will go to the grand jury.

MacPherson was beaten after he had assisted a policeman in subduing an unruly prisoner. The latter, wagon carried prisoner and officer away, leaving MacPherson behind, and a gang set upon him. He died later at the hospital, leaving a widow and two small children.

John and Martin Donohue of Harvard at, previously arrested in connection, will be released, it is understood.

News of Mrs. Curley's Death Reaches Far Labrador

News of the death of Mrs. James M. Curley has reached the coastal missions and medical stations of Sir Wilfred Grenfell in Labrador and today the mayor received a letter from the distinguished humanitarian expressing his sympathy for Mrs. Curley.

The letter read in part:

"To those of us who can realize what it means to be alone, as I, alas, so often have to be, it is easier to understand the gap this makes in life's journey, especially unless we have that abiding comfort which comes of the spiritual interpretation of the meaning of life that I know you are in possession of. This is a coast, isolated and lonely, where that is the greatest asset in life."

POWER FIRM REFUSES TO GIVE DATA

Stockholders Are Denied Information of Tide Company, Recently Organized Here

Stockholders in the Universal Tide Power Company of Boston have complained to the stock fraud bureau of the Boston Evening American that they have been unable to receive any satisfactory information concerning the status of their holdings. The relatives of a share owner who is desperately ill and in need of funds appealed for aid today.

The Boston Better Business Bureau reports that the Universal Tide Power Co. was recently reorganized after a rather hectic experience.

TWO INDICTED

John A. Knowlton, treasurer of the Company, and Mary E. Cantwell of Dorchester, a trustee, were indicted by a Federal Grand Jury in March, 1928, on charges of using the mails in furtherance of a scheme to defraud.

At the trial evidence was introduced that the promoters had claimed the Eastern Electric Illuminating Company had offered $5,000,000 to Knowlton for his patent in harnessing tide power and that the Republic of France also was ready to buy the patent.

Knowlton claimed to have developed power from the rise and fall of tides at his plant in East Saugus.

BOTH CLEARED

Miss Cantwell was charged with aiding and abetting Knowlton. She lived on Treseott st., Dorchester, and he lived on Long ave., Allston.

On May 28, 1928, a jury found both not guilty.

They were both indicted in Suffolk County on the charge of violating the "Blue Sky" law. On May 15, 1929, Judge Raymond ordered a jury to return verdicts for the defendants.

The Universal Tide Power Co. was organized in 1916 with an authorized capitalization of $10,000,000 in common stock.

SALE BANNED

Six million shares were issued to Knowlton and the balance to the public from $1 to $5 a share. In September, 1922, after a hearing by the Department of Public Utilities the company was barred from selling stock in Massachusetts.

Experts testified that the company's machines had no commercial possibilities.

The department's finding was amended several months later to permit the sale of $35,000 additional shares.

Government engineers at the trial of Knowlton contended that the Saugus plant produced only five-horse power and the spillway used covered eight acres. They said that on this basis a plant to produce 1,000-horse power would require 7000 acres and would cost $56,000,000 to build.

Woman Complains of Her "Admirer"

Mrs. Mary Giannino of Compton st., South End, reported to police today that a man has repeatedly tried to make "dates" with her, attempted to seize her in Scollay sq. She ran toward the courthouse and he ran in the opposite direction. She said he has told her he was mad about her, and a few years ago tried to kidnap her small son.

Hit by Falling Wall

Harry Banks, of 221 Pleasant st., Watertown, received injuries yesterday when he was trapped in the collapse of a wall at the ruins of the A. H. Hewes pottery plant in North Cambridge.

Are You a Victim?

If you have been victimized by stock swindlers, the Boston Evening American, co-operating with Government, State and County officials, will be glad to advise you what is best to be done. Write to the Boston Evening American Stock Fraud Bureau, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, giving all the circumstances. Such information will be held confidential.

Defective Brakes on Auto of a Roxbury Man Leads to Registrar's Action

Registrar of Motor Vehicles George A. Parker today suspended the license of Harold B. Dockray, of Roxbury, and revoked his car registration as a warning to motorists who have not checked up on their brakes.

The registrar says that on June 3, Dockray left his car parked in front of 24 Wachusett st., Medford, and a few minutes after the car rolled down the Mystic st. hill and crashed into the wall of the Hillside schoolhouse, endangering the lives of several children.

An inspection of the car after the accident, the registrar says, was the basis upon which his action is based.

"I am taking this action as a warning to all other operators and owners who may be driving their cars with defective brakes," Parker declared.

"Particularly at this time during the Save-a-Life campaign and the special period for the inspection of motor vehicle equipment, there is no excuse for owners operating or permitting others to operate their cars with either brakes or lights that are inadequate."

George Hawleys Plan for Musicale Next Week

THIS HAS BEEN A MUSICAL summer, in town and out of town. Those of us who have had to stay near the city, or in it, have been blessed with Esplanade concerts, conducted by Arthur Fiedler. Where could one find a more delightful or romantic spot than the River Embankment, just as the sun goes down, with the magnificent Technology buildings fading away in a blaze of gold. Dusk comes stealing slowly and little lights begin to twinkle here and there, a river boat discharges its human cargo and silently slips away again into the dark, a murmur of voices all around and then loud applause—the orchestra has come into the shell, there is a pleasant hum of tuning instruments, and two hours of musical enchantment is ours.

AMONG THE MANY OUT of town musicales is one which has been anticipated by the friends of Mr. and Mrs. George Hawley, of Upper Pine Tree Road, Chestnut Hill, a watery home is on Crescent st. Bay on The North Shore coterie will have the privilege of hearing Teacha Seide, world famous violinist. That day evening, August 28 at 9:15. Mrs. Hawley's musicales are already famous and she is fortunate in having so noted a musician on her program.

Betty Alden

Brown and Beige for Autumn Chic

By ANN ARDEN

Model from C. F. Hovey Co.

FASHIONABLE WOMEN this fall will be working out new color schemes in their costumes. The accurate matchings of a season past will be replaced by subtle contrasting of accessories with the costume.

IN COATS the deep tones prevail. The off-blacks seen in frocks will be repeated in coats. Light coats with dark fur will be very smart, as will the reverse combination.

YOU MAY have wondered whether furs would return for the fall—since they have been discarded with more or less thoroughness this spring and summer. News of huge fur collars on fall coats answer this question. They are dignified collars, these new types, and frame the face luxuriously without that casual nonchalant air that the off-the-face collar brought with it.

PLENTY OF long-haired furs are used. The fall coat is the most important item in your wardrobe and the one pictured will blend successfully in the season's new contrasting of frock, hat and accessories of brown broadcloth. Its swing achieved by diagonal seaming. The fabric belt, with brown buckle, is optional. A small collar of beige wolf frames the face becomingly and the deep cuffs are set on, with practical forethought, some inches above the sleeve edge. A brown velvet hat, with brim, is worn and brown suede pumps; while the pigskin gloves and hose are of beige.

THERE'S A really new idea abroad in the use of color for fall. Many women, of course, will still want to have their accessories match their costumes, but the newest tendency, and one which has been gaining popularity among the best-dressed women, is to co-ordinate rather than exactly match one's costume and accessory colors.

FOR INSTANCE, in addition to having a set of brown accessories to wear with your brown coat you might also choose a dark green hat, bag, and shoes and the combination would be splendid. Or if your coat or dress happened to be green, then the accessories might be brown, and the same brown hat, bag and shoes would "co-ordinate" beautifully with a wine colored costume.

* * *

SEE HOW cleverly you can change the whole look of your costumes by varying the accessories in this interesting way.

Clubwomen Are Urged to Establish 'Key Homes'

By NANCY BREWSTER

The establishment of "key homes" as a combatant of the modernity which threatens the social integrity of the family and tends to divide husband and wife in temperament and personality is urged upon clubwomen of the country by the department of the American home in the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Since the General Federation of Women's Club represents the largest organized group of homemakers in the country Mrs. John D. Sherman, American home head, holds the situation, "our problem."

It is up to the clubwomen, she maintains, to establish "key homes," which, she explains, "will embark in women and men homemakers the vast storehouse of accumulated knowledge—knowledge that must be passed on to them if the home is to continue to bring about social integration and individual realization."

What is the major difficulty?

Mrs. Sherman says:

"Young men and young women usually marry without any preparation for the responsibilities that underlie the marriage partnership. The days of working side by side which drew pioneer wives and husbands together with single aim have gone forever. Modern wives and husbands must grow together in the leisure moments at home.

"Every young couple should have available to them as they need it, the best counsel that the present age can give. The school facilities provided for the boy and girl, the teachers trained to teach the growing mind of youth, cannot reach the adult.

"Homemakers, men and women, must have their own facilities, through which to acquire knowledge; they must have their own teachers and counselors if they are to guide their homes and their families."

Mrs. Sherman recommends to American Home chairmen that a special committee of forceful young housewives be organized within the American Home department of the club which shall determine the problems of family with a view to betterment.

Mrs. C. B. Marston to Direct "Club News" During Coming Year

"Club News," the enterprising club organ of the Brockton Woman's Club will this year be edited by Mrs Clyde B. Marston, second vice-president. The Brockton monthly is a healthy rival to "Topics," the official organ of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs. Clubwomen concede, since in size and volume and editorial matter it is newsy and informative with a generous amount of advertising space.

Last year, I am told, in addition to her duties as president of the Brockton Woman's Club, Mrs. Ernest Dewyer, was obliged to scout all the advertisements for Club News; but this year there has been a change of policy. Several club members will handle the advertising material.

Mrs. Pike takes over club leadership this year for the first time, succeeding Mrs. Lurcie W. Child. Chelsea clubwomen meet in the Carey ave. Methodist Episcopal Church at 2:30 p. m. fortnightly from October to May.

While I am on the subject of firsts, first meetings and the like Mrs. Robert S. Wallace, second-term president of the Wollaston Woman's Club announces as the opening date of her club, Tuesday, October 7 and the place, Masonic Temple.

Mrs. Wallace and one of her vice-presidents, who accompanied her to Denver last June to the biennial of the General Federation, will recount their trip for the membership, stressing the highlights of the convention trip.

REMOVES GREASE SPOTS WITHOUT LEAVING A "RING"
Most silks are now "weighted" or "loaded" with foreign substances to make them appear of better quality. Liquid cleaners dissolve this "weighting" or "loading," and this causes "rings" on Silks. We have therefore created Carbona Grease Absorbent Powder for use on Silks only. This Powder will not affect "weighting" or "loading" in any way—it absorbs Grease Spots instead of dissolving them, and no "rings" can result from its use on Silks.

COOK-COOS

by Ted Cook

Chairman Legge wants farmers to raise less wheat. But the farmers think that would be silly, and the only way to fix things is for the board to buy more wheat.

The logical move to restore harmony would be a concerted drive by both factions to get housewives to burn more toast.

It would probably be impossible, anyway, if would give the farmers and the farmers' friends something to crab about besides each other.

"If you will step this way—" the coppery young woman purred.

"Something in black velvet," Raquel said, "with white paradise."

"Why, Mademoiselle Raquel!" The coppery young woman exclaimed. She was a flutter of excitement.

NEWS OF Trends of the Day MAJOR New York List MARKETS

Bears Are Driven to Cover in Wall St. Transactions

New York, Aug. 19—The stock market professionals reversed themselves today, in place of the reactionary price movements of the last day or two there was witnessed a steady upward move all along the line after a sagging opening for much of the session.

Though strength in the stock market was attributed largely to the "running in of the shorts" with the speculative favorites, good investment buying was also in order in some sections of the list. The closing was steady.

MILLIONS TO INVEST.

Millions of dollars are now awaiting investment in good stocks as soon as they give evidence of having reached approximate bottom, according to the best-posted viewpoint in the financial district.

United States Steel was a active leader in the bullish ranks, forging ahead in anticipation of a more favorable weekly production report. Vandalum soon jumped 4 points and Fox Film recovered all of yesterday's losses with other members of the amusement group sold at the best prices on the move.

Radio hit back at the bears in its new advance to above 40, as talk of a new organization of actual formation circulated through Wall Street.

Public Service of New Jersey, Standard Gas, United Corporation and Electric Power led the rally in the utilities, all took up about a point on the average.

Government agencies which surveyed the effects of the recent rains on the drouth areas were generally satisfactory, though considerably more moisture is needed in large sections of the corn belt.

A jump in Atchison was a late feature of the railroad list. New York Central soon sold up over 2 points at 162, and new rallies of 1 to 2 points or more were scored by a few of the rail shares that have been under selling pressure. The motor stocks were inactive but fairly steady.

OIL HITS NEW LOW

Except for the Shell Union-Royal Dutch group, the oils were dragged with narrow price movements. Royal Dutch dropped off 2 points to the year's lowest price at 40 on revived rumors of probable suspension of the cash dividend on Shell Union Oil, its important subsidiary.

Macy's 6-point jump to 125¾ was the feature of the Mercantile stocks, most of which in a dull time should be "discounting" the Fall and Winter upturn in business. Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward and Woolworth all quickly rallied with the market.

Brokerage house gossip said that a handful of the more active professional operators were responsible for rally a following around the bull standard, feeling that the completely sold out condition of the market as indicated by its performances during the past two sessions, had definitely injured the position now on the bear cause. The line of the least resistance appeared to be upward.

MAJOR GROUPS RALLY

The afternoon advance embraced practically all prominent groups with the tobaccos and utilities notably strong. U. S. Steel, American Can, Radio, Loew's and Myers issues, American Tobacco stocks, North American, American Water Works, Stone & Webster, DuPont, Westinghouse Electric, Fox and New York Central gained about 2 to 4, while such wide movers as Allied Chemical, Atchison, Case and Columbian Carbon mounted about 5 to 9.

Although the market has been unresponsive to optimistic professional declarations for some time, professional operators, finding themselves against a stone wall on the bear side of the market, were quick to make the most of available material susceptible to bullish interpretation.

Secretary Mellon was quoted as saying in Pittsburgh that as soon as merchandise in warehouses is cleared of present supplies on hand the business situation should improve.

"Curtailment in output without a question will correct the present condition within a short time," he stated.

Bankers and statistical services have been pointing out for some time that consumption was running ahead of production, thus paving the way for a fresh start. Specu-lators, however, have found it difficult to interpret slack industrial operations bullishly, hesitful as they were, to act confidently.

A statement by Harvey Firestone to the effect that America is on the eve of greater prosperity than it has known during the past 10 years also helped market sentiment. In addition, the American Machinist's review of business conditions struck a more optimistic note than this publication had sounded all summer, pointing to a flood of inquiries that really mean business in the not-too-distant future.

TRADING PICKS UP

Although the volume of trading picked up a little, it was still light and almost entirely professional.

There are still a few flat notes sounded in the chorus of business reports and opinions. The crude oil situation is again causing wide concern in Wall St., and some observers believe another price cutting orgy may break out in the mid-continent area, although production was cut further last week.

After stocks had been sent up 2 to 3 points during the early hours of trading, the bulls encountered a temporary setback which pared down the gains by 1 to 3 points, on estimates of steel operations indicating further slackening.

The upward swing was soon resumed, however, and a few stocks made new highs on the movement in the late afternoon, including American Telephone, Johns Manville, Drug, Inc., and Houston Oil, up 2 points or more.

Such stocks as Radio, U. S. Steel and American Can yielded part of their recent gains, but not more, but closed firm. During the height of the advance Allied Chemical was up 8, Utilities and tobaccos showed conspicuous strength.

Cotton Higher in New York Market

New York, Aug. 19—Cotton opened very steady today at an advance of 8 to 13 points. Prices then picked about 20 to 27 points net higher. New selling was then encountered.

Grains Are Mixed in Chicago Market

Chicago, Aug. 19—Grains closed mixed today. Wheat was 1c down to 1c up, with September showing the gain. Corn finished ⅛ to 1c down, oats ⅛ to ⅜c off and rye ⅛ to ⅛c lower.

Bonds Are Bought Near Year's Tops

New York, Aug. 19.—Selective buying of a group of domestic obligations held the bond market in its upward course today. PORT OF BOSTON

By CARL MORRISON

Handling passenger traffic matters at Commonwealth Pier showed a marked improvement over the week-end, when three ocean liners docked.

When the Karlsruhe arrived from Europe on Saturday, the North German Lloyd officials had roped lanes available to keep the crowds in order.

Other steamers in port were the Cleveland of the Hamburg-American Line and the motor vessel Britannic of the White Star Line, both sailing for Europe on Sunday.

An excellent job of handling the crowds done when the Britannic was in port. The crowd was less than 1000, as contrasted with 2,000 or more on previous occasions, but the police lines were built to handle maximum crowds.

FOR 'MISS NEW ENGLAND'

A special feature of the "Radio Travelogues" by Miss Alyce Siemens of the Boston American travel bureau over station WHDH at noon, is the talk scheduled for Wednesday at 12.10 o'clock. This will be devoted to the "Typical Girl" contest being conducted by this newspaper, and will tell about the special trip to Paris, which the winner will take on the French liner Ile de France together with others chosen elsewhere in America.

On Thursday of this week, the talk will concern Caribbean cruises of the United Fruit Co., with special reference old Spanish customs. On Friday, Miss Siemens will talk about "Europe—old and new by way of the Britannic of the White Star lines.

TEMPORARY HOUSING

Commissioner Lyman of the Massachusetts public works department has informed those who are protesting about Commonwealth Pier conditions, that he plans merely to put up temporary shacks this winter.

The engineers want about 7000 feet more space on the pier, but shippers are protesting against the encroachment upon their functions.

MORE GUARD WORK

While a portion of the public may have a confused impression of the Coast Guard as being exclusively a rum chasing unit, the fishing fleet of Boston knows otherwise. An example of the humanitarian work of the service developed yesterday, when the guard undertook search for John Perry on a fishing schooner, to notify him that his wife was dying ashore. Transportation to the nearest port was to be offered to him when located.

EXPERTS ON GYRO

Three men, well known in Boston, have recently qualified as experts on the gyro-compass, winning certificates from the Sperry people.

James R. Pelsdorfer is second officer on the steamship Commercial Navigator, now at pier 40 in Charlestown, discharging and loading cargo.

Julius F. Jacet is lieutenant on the new Coast Guard vessel, Champlain, now in New York. He lives on St. Mark road, East Boston, and served on the C. G. cutter Mojave. He is a graduate of the Massachusetts Nautical School.

Benjamin Bendetti is master of the Saguache, which just sailed from this port to New York. She has twice been decorated for daring sea rescues.

CONFERENCE INVITED

Mayor Curley and John T. Scully of the city industrial bureau have invited an important group to hold a convention in Boston. This is the North Atlantic Unified Kingdom and Continental Freight Conference, representing steamship interests in Canada and the U. S.

They meet each month to discuss rates and allied matters. Not for at least a generation have they held a Boston session, and their coming will be important to the harbor. Among the lines most active in the conference is the Yankee Line, represented in Boston by Jones & Webb. The conference probably will be held early in September.

TODAY'S WHO'S WHO

The subject of today's "Who's Who in the Harbor" is Capt. Millard Wade, port warden and surveyor.

Capt. Millard Wade

Capt. Wade and a twin brother, Willard, have followed the sea since boyhood and their paths have frequently crossed, with resultant mistaken identity.

The port warden has a wide circle of friends, both in Boston and in many ports of the world. He is recognized as an authority on marine matters, and has a hobby of reading sea stories.

BOSTONIANS AFLOAT

On the White Star liner Olympic, due in New York today from Southampton and Cherbourg, are the following Bostonians: Mrs. John Caswell, Miss Natalie Harris, Dr. and Mrs. Charles F. Lynch, Miss Phyllis Robbins and Mrs. E. E. Waterman.

On the French line motorship Lafayette, which arrived in New York over the weekend, were: Charles Bancroft, Boston corporation lawyer and member of the executive committee of the New England Council; Miss Muriel Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Aiken, Professor and Mrs. J. D. M. Ford, Dr. and Mrs. E. Brooks, Philip Morse, Dr. F. B. Lund, all of Boston.

On the Leviathan of the United States lines, arriving in New York over the weekend, were: Mrs. Thomas Gardner, Lessons of Mayor Curley; Miss Jennie O'Callaghan, Penn Ferry Road, Milford; Howard; Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Price, Thomas Whalen, Mrs. A. V. Blanchard, Mrs. Ida S. Ridgeway, Miss Edith S. Ridgeway, Dr. and Mrs. Patrick Kelley, Miss Marguerite Wessling and Mrs. Daniel Mullen.

The Big Question

Has the Slump Reached Its Limit?

"Are we touching a level bottom or are there bigger, deeper holes ahead of us?"

Answer that question, and Wall Street and the whole country will say "much obliged."

When the tickers died out and Wall Street went to bed or to the night clubs on Saturday, the question seemed as uncertain as ever.

Many stocks were up, as they had been on the buoyant day before.

But wheat and the other grains were down. Cotton in a sudden drop lost one cent a pound, eight per cent of its total value.

Stock prices are supposed to depend on the farmers' prosperity, and that depends on grain and cotton prices.

But perhaps the supposition is a false one, and industry, which is back of the Wall Street stocks, can get along no matter how the farmer feels.

Various explanations are given and many remedies offered. One enthusiast says:

"Give the war veterans in a lump sum the three billion dollars which they are entitled to receive gradually. Use payments from the Allies to finance the three-billion-dollar distribution. The veterans can be trusted to spend their three billion dollars very rapidly and that spending will restore prosperity."

Henry Ford tells the people about the same story that an affectionate mother tells her little boy when she gives him castor oil.

The mother says:

"The castor oil is good for you—you will feel wonderfully well and happy after it."

And she is right. Henry Ford tells us that the slump in Wall Street, reflected throughout the country, "is good for us," and we will be healthier and happier when it is over.

We have been dancing along in a sort of Santa Claus prosperity dream.

Some found their Santa Claus in the stock ticker which seemed able always to go up, and never to come down. Everybody was looking for a Santa Claus of some kind.

Now, according to Mr. Ford, the public have learned that gambling works both ways, with the wrong way at the end of the transaction.

Those that were gambling have gone back to work, including some of the best industrial brains in the country, that had been devoting their intelligence to Wall Street and neglecting their own business.

All are willing to work now, if they can get jobs.

They will all get jobs eventually, and the country will resume its upward prosperity march much the better for its dose of Wall Street castor oil.

But Mr. Ford may be too optimistic. Every little boy needs several doses of castor oil in his life. He will go back to the green apples.

Every man inclined to gamble, great industrialist or average [illegible], needs more than one gambling lesson. He will return to his gambling.

However, this country fortunately is not controlled by the weakness of gamblers or the fluctuations in stock prices, artificially controlled.

It depends on its gigantic wealth, which is inexhaustible, on the application of science and efficiency to its industrial methods in which it leads the world.

We may not be "touching bottom" quite yet, but we are not far from it.

The next movement will be upward to higher levels of employment and prosperity.

And if the Government learns from this depression that it must think of its farmers and its other workers, and not only of its millionaire industrialists, the lesson will have been worth the price.

48 Years of Service

Knights of Columbus Celebrate Notable Progress, in Convention Here

Forty-eight years ago at New Haven, Ct., a small group of men of the Catholic Church founded the Knights of Columbus. Its purpose was to alleviate, through organization, the suffering of the poor, and to promote, through organization, the blessed fellowship of mankind.

How complete has been the accomplishment of its aims, its supreme convention in Boston this week attests. Boston plays host to thousands of delegates gathered here from every state and territory to represent nearly a million men pledged in ritual "to God, to Church, and to State."

With the years and the progress of the nation and the Catholic Church, the Knights of Columbus have kept unfaltering stride, showing the way in innumerable instances of charitable works on a large scale, taking a leading place in all movements for the uplifting of mankind, its membership representative of the body politic, men of science and the professions and the every-day, long-day, work-a-day world.

Men overseas knew the Knights of Columbus as a guiding hand in the darkness of war, an ever-present reminder of fellowship and the finer things of life, doing its work without spectacular display in behalf of all races and creeds.

Throughout this country and Canada orphanages have been built in large numbers to brighten the life of thousands of children left parentless; finely equipped playgrounds have been laid out to give the child of the city a better chance for health of mind and body; scholarships have been established that the youth of promise and small means may gain higher education. Supporting such movements stand the Knights of Columbus, seeking no public recognition of good deeds.

Of them, William Cardinal O'Connell, our own resident and dean of the American hierarchy, says:

"There is no better lay organization."

After a lapse of 13 years, Boston is again proud to play the host at convention honors and wishes to all the Knights and their guests an enjoyable visit on the occasion of the Massachusetts Bay Colony's Tercentenary celebration.

That this convention, as its predecessors, is destined to mark another milestone in progress is evidenced from its very beginning by the movement seeking to end the slander which annually attends the candidacies of good men for public office. Many capable men of irreproachable character have shunned politics because of its malicious and vindictive campaigns of vilification and abuse. Putting an end to such slander, or even curbing it, will make us a healthier people and give us a greater respect for our fellows.

ARE WE TOUCHING BOTTOM?

That is the great question in and out of Wall Street. It comes too late for some little fellows. They were drowned long ago, although some of them don't know it. [See Editorial.]

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Dare to Be Foolish!

DARE TO make mistakes! Dare to make a fool of yourself! For sincere foolishness is good stuff. It is, I suspect, the matrix of all great action. Everything noble and brave and wise that men have done, started in foolishness—in a vague groping and blundering in doing things that other men heerded or condemned.

Elsie Robinson

Even the earth, at the start, was a sort of divine foolishness. Remember? "And the earth was without form, and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the spirit of God moved upon the face of the water——"

Gazing upon that confusion, from their fixed places in the vast, blue orderliness, the stars doubtless snickered and wondered what the Old Man was up to. But presently, purpose appeared in the chaos, and light in the darkness and—man.

And so it is in all great doings. Foolishness precedes them. And the taller the deed, the greater the preliminary foolishness and risk and daring, and the louder the ridicule and doubt and actual persecution.

Edison is acclaimed a great man now. No one gave him much when he began dasting the elements. Ask the home folks what they thought of the Wright brothers when they started flopping around. They've all joined the I-Knew-Them-When Club now; but perhaps a few will be honest enough to repeat the original comments. And, prior to this tolerant age, they boiled 'em in oil or toasted them at stakes when they tried to start something that upset the status quo.

All that we have we owe to the inspired fools—to the man and the woman who dared to follow a dream. Always they paid a price. They were laughed at—sneered at —cruelly punished. They lost money and standing and home and health and the affection and trust of their loved ones. But they went on—fumbling, groping, blundering—and at last they had their vindication.

But not always. Not always did they find the thing they sought. But whether they did not not—whether they died famous or branded as fools—it was worth all they paid. FOR ONLY THOSE WHO DARED TO DOUBT AND EXPERIMENT AND MAKE MISTAKES, ONLY THOSE WHO HAVE THE COURAGE TO MAKE FOOLS OF THEMSELVES, REALLY LIVE. They are the only human beings who taste the full glory and risk of being men.

Civilization and Power

By ARCHIBALD HENDERSON

UNTIL WE can see the present age in a long perspective, it will probably be impossible to settle the great debate concerning the contributions of power to our civilization. But already we feel sure that, from a material standpoint, power has served as a mighty agent of release for the work-faculties of mankind. The case for power has been admirably put by C. F. Hirshfeld in the arresting book edited by Charles A. Beard—"Toward Civilization."

Machines, notably the engine and water-wheel, are called prime movers. In 1849, through prime movers, some 10,000,000 horse-power were available to the inhabitants of this country.

By 1923 this figure had been multiplied seventy times. Today the total primary power in the country is one hundred times what it was in 1849. The great advance is indicated if we compute one horse-power as equivalent to ten men in work-producing ability.

On this basis, each man, woman and child in the country in 1849 had the equivalent of five human slaves available for service. Today the power available per capita is so vast that each man, woman and child now has the equivalent of about 100 slaves!

The triumph of such a civilization is that none of the power represents human slavery. There are no shackles, no auction blocks, no servitude. Power is at the service of every one, doing his or her work as part of the contribution of the power age to the development of a new culture.

The contemporary, from the power standpoint, is 50 times as well off as the famous freemen of ancient Greece.

The contribution of the automotive industry toward the new civilization is far vaster than is popularly supposed. In 1923 almost three-quarters of all the prime-mover capacity in the country was contributed by the pleasure type of automobile!

Is Power serving to bring man nearer to those heights which idealists of all ages have pictured as his goal? Or will Power prove to be a veritable Frankenstein monster now actually engaged in destroying his maker?

There is no authoritative answer possible at the moment. But there can be no doubt that man's destiny lies within himself. Power has liberated man from innumerable forms of economic slavery. The problem is as to how man will use his new freedom.

H. G. Wells Writes

ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"

THE ACTIVE cell division at the tail's cut surface of the newt has produced a mass of undifferentiated cells, capable of turning into arm or leg as readily as tail.

H. G. Wells

Which they shall turn into is at this stage decided by the influences of the area where they happen to grow. Soon it settles down as an embryo does and its parts assume definite responsibilities.

In the developing organism as plasticity gives place to fixity of direction, the unified whole becomes the mosaic of chemically independent parts. Different creatures differ markedly from each other concerning the time at which this transformation is effected.

Just as with the determination of the direction lines of the body, some eggs have all their symmetry ready made for them in the ovary, others wait and have it decided by outer agencies after fertilization, so here.

In frogs and newts and many other creatures the irrevocable chemical decisions are not taken till late, well after the close of segmentation. In other eggs, however, like those of seasquirts, the corresponding step has been pushed backward to just after fertilization; and in still others the egg may already have become a chemical mosaic even before it is shed from the ovary. In such cases, of course, there is little or none of the plasticity found in vertebrates during segmentation.

If the two first cells into which such an egg divides be separated from each other, each turns into a half-embryo and does not regulate itself to a whole. But in all the principles remain the same, it is only that the time relations are shifted.

Sec. 3. The Mouldings of Organs by use.

No organism, and especially no higher animal, could work if it remained only a mosaic of independent parts. And so the next step is to give back to the embryo the unity it has so lately lost, to make its parts interlock and co-operate again. But the machinery by which the new adult unity is achieved is quite different from that underlying the unity of the segmenting egg. Instead of mere gradients of activity tying the whole together, we have now coming into play the ubiquitous streams of blood and lymph and the fine branching of the nerves.

Of their unifying functions we have already spoken; they provide a common internal environment, a postal delivery system, a telephone system and a controlling headquarters.

Once this stage begins, new agencies can be set to work to put the finishing touches to the animal's construction. One of these is the battery of hormones which regulate growth and development; of these we have already said something. The other, equally important, is the actual working of the separate organs for the good of the tissue-commonwealth as a whole.

It was the German zoologist, Wilhelm Roux (1850-1924), father of the science of developmental physiology, who, half a century ago, pointed out the vital importance of what he called functional differentiation.

Functional differentiation means differentiation brought about through the strains and stresses to which growing tissues are subjected.

Beware the Ides of October

By ARTHUR BAER

IF THE same thing happens last October that happened next October, we'll be hornswoggled, that's what we hope.

* * *

You remember last October, have you? Or are you still on margin?

* * *

That was the month when Wall Street was a miniature golf course.

That was the month when panic was trumps and every bank opened a dental office to extract the gold from your back teeth.

* * *

It was lovely while it lasted. And it lasted.

* * *

Now, we are almost caught up to another October. Will the well established public make another snap at the scarlet coachman or does the burned child boycott the kitchen stove? Still, what's a little more heat to a rare sirloin?

The brokers are whistling happy days. But they're using a fountain pen full of red ink for a flute.

We like the way they handle stockholders in Germany. A Coburg sausage factory collected its shareholders and told them there would be no dividends this fiscal year to fork with.

Which was all ayo with the stockholders. Then the chairman rose on his spare heels and told them that the annual dinner was also canceled by mutual indigestion.

That started a riot. The annual dinner consisted of pig's knuckles and sauerkraut. German investors always get a meal with their director's notices.

Over here we get the notices first and don't feel like eating.

* * *

Over there they give 'em sauerkraut.

* * *

Over here we get applesauce.

* * *

After the failure of the company to toss in the bale of sauerkraut, the disgruntled holders of common stock proceeds to tear the sausage factory up into hot dog stands.

* * *

They wrecked the joint. The committee on stale business only saved its life by promising a double-header of sauerkraut for 1931. The shareholders then accepted the report of the president and voted to merge with the nearest exit.

* * *

Food is very important in all things. And with another irresistible October coming on why don't our brokers guarantee us a banquet in November if it's only in a bread line?

We advise speculators to proceed with caution during the 30 dazes of this October. You remember the turkeys were very fat last Thanksgiving. But who cared? The plum pudding was good at Christmas. But who could swallow it? And the bells rang merrily on New Year eve. But we were all tuned out.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 19—Youthful Jed Harris, flashing vividly across Broadway horizons a few years ago, is not the only No. 1 boy along the Rialto. The newest "hope" is Chester Erskin, who, just turned 26, is making older producers snap into huddles.

Like the unshaven Harris, Erskin is one of the pale dreamers triumphant over the bitterness of early poverty. His face is etched with a tiny acid wrinkle or so as mementos of the travail. Two years ago he was occupying a bench in Bryant Park and using the public library reading room as an office.

Indeed, the charity ward in a local hospital records he was a patient for malnutrition. But today he has ascended the throne of the great Charles Frohman and will direct activities of the artistic Empire theater to succeed Gilbert Miller.

Mr. Miller is enamored of British life and anxious to confine production efforts to London. Erskin's expression has the fire of the zealot, but has proved him practical withal. In a year he directed three hits—"Harlem," "Subway Express" and "The Last Mile."

While his efforts lacked the drawing room polish of the Frohman regime he has supplied a raw realism the theater seldom achieves. He vamoosed from a law school in native Schenectady for the stage and acted small parts in road companies and directed repertoire failures.

At a casual glance he might be one of those studious looking office boys so common in New York. He talks hesitatingly and with no assurance. Yet when he selects his company and begins rehearsals he is compelling and thoroughly alive.

If he succeeds, he will have accomplished a post languishing for applicants since Frohman's passing, largely through fear of comparison. The past year, incidentally, has shown the most brilliant production efforts are the handiwork of striplings.

New York has a white-mustached house-to-house book agent of the old school who earns $20,000 a year canvassing among discriminating book lovers. He makes no sales talk, but travels in an automobile, leaving books he thinks might interest customers.

To my notion, super salesmanship is an offshoot of studied reticence. People talkad into buying what they do not want rarely return. The pieces I patronize are those never urging a sale. Show me an establishment handling shoddy goods and I'll show you an over-zealous, lippy sales force, full of extravagant talk.

A waiter at a Child's carries a pocket magnifying glass. He discovered patrons often left their glasses home. He will not be a waiter long.

Personal nomination for the most level-headed of New York theatrical producers—Brock Pemberton.

* * *

The newest avenue hotel—The Pierce—offers a soft sublimity to the twistiways sky line, the beauty of a graceful grey spire rising over a monotony of flatlands. It is as obvious as obelisk or Paul Whiteman backing out of a tent, but take a look at it in the soft glow of a youngish moon from Central Park West and you want to be a better boy.

* * *

"I saw you in the Harlem Cafe," writes Miss K. G., "when the irate patron suddenly flashed a razor. "Wasn't it exciting?"

"Very. And did you catch my footwork?"

They were discussing an unromantic young lady on her first trip to Vermont.

"While others," observed Mary Boland, "were floating around in gondolas she was just riding around in a boat."
